“Kent, in the Commentaries Cæsar writ.

Is term'd the civil'st place of all this isle;

Sweet is the country, because full of riches,

The people liberal, valiant, active, worthy.”

Shakspeare, K. Hen. VI. part ii. — Act 4, sc. 7.

— ”O famous Kent, —

What country hath this isle, that can compare with thee,

Which hast within thyselfe as much as thou canst wish,

Thy conyes, venson, fruit, thy sorts of fowle and fish,

As what with strength comports, thy hay, thy come, thy wood,

Nor any thing doth want, that any where is good.”

Drayton, Poly-Olbion, 18th Song.

PREFACE.

AN impression that such a work has long been required, has led to the compilation of the present volume, which, it is hoped, will not be considered inaptly called "Bibliotheca Cantiana." A long acquaintance with both old and new books, especially those on English Topography, joined to an ardent love for the subject, and an acquaintance with many gentlemen interested in every thing that relates to the County of Kent, has enabled the compiler to give a complete catalogue of all the works relating to that county from the folio down to the pamphlet and broadside. Here and there, a scarce and obscure tract may by possibility have escaped notice; but such omissions will be considered venial by those who can form an estimate of the labour required in compilations of this description. On the other hand, the volume may by some be supposed to contain notices of uninteresting or irrelevant matter; but from the latter charge it may be defended in the words of a gentleman who, for many years past, has made provincial history his peculiar study, and from whose pen a new history of this eminent county, so rich in picturesque beauty, so abundant in antiquities, and so replete with historical associations, may shortly be expected. "The range of reading," says Mr. Streatfield, in his Excerpta Cantiana, "to which the county collector is invited, is hardly credible; works that have no intrinsic claim to be remembered challenge perusal when they bear a provincial name: the poetry of Toke of Bere, and Boys of Hode – squibs, tracts, and sermons, dull or fanatical, quaint or orthodox, become interesting to him." Perhaps the writings on no other county (the metropolitan excepted), are so numerous as those upon Kent, and it will be remembered, that it was the first that had its historian, and even at this day we open "Lambarde's Perambulation" with an interest which cannot be derived from the works of many of our modern tourists.

The names and works of Somner, Twysden, Philipott, Harris, Hasted, Duncombe, Gostling, Lewis, Boys, and Jacob, are familiar to all in the least degree acquainted with the history of Kent; but it is not from these alone that many interesting details of the County may be gathered. Numbers of the curious tracts of the seventeenth century, relating to Kent, will be found described in the present work; and it will not be denied that they contain much curious matter, illustrative of the stormy period of the Civil War and Commonwealth: from such almost-forgotten memorials, much may be culled for the purposes of the county historian. It is hoped that a complete list of the local, personal, and private Acts of Parliament relating to the County, from Magna Charta down to the year 1837, will be found not the least useful or interesting feature in this volume. Nor are the papers which are scattered throughout the voluminous works of the Archæologia, Gentleman's Magazine, Philosophical Transactions, and many others that treat upon this county, without their interest to the historian and topographer, as they often contain much valuable and interesting information not elsewhere to be found.

The "Bibliotheca Cantiana" is, in some measure, indebted to the labours of Gough, Upcott, and Watt; but those who are at all conversant with their works will at once acknowledge that they contain but a small portion of the matter to be found in the present volume. It is also much indebted to several gentlemen for valuable assistance; among these, the names of Hugh Welch Diamond, Esq., F.S.A.; the late J. G. Chaplin, Esq.; Clement T. Smythe, Esq., of Maidstone;

Mr. John Dunkin, of Bromley; William Upcott, Esq.,

viii

of Islington, stand conspicuous; but especially the latter, for much valuable information. The volume has from time to time been unavoidably delayed, but it has in consequence been rendered more complete; and the object of the compiler will be accomplished if it should be found to afford the required assistance to the curious in Kentish Topography. The value of the copious Index annexed to this work will be acknowledged by all who have experienced the want of such a means of reference.

Bibliothecaa Cantiana.

HISTORIANS OF THE COUNTY.

A PERAMBULATION OF KENT: conteining the Description, Hystorie, and Customes of that Shyre, collected and written (for the most part) in the yeare 1570, by William Lambard, of Lincolne's Inn, Gent., and now increased by the addition of some things which the Author himselfe hath obserued since that time, 4to.

Imprinted at London for Ralph Newberie, Anno 1576.

Collation — Title, Dedication “To his Countriemen, the Gentlemen of the Countie of Kent, by T. W.” (Thomas Wotton), Saxon Characters, Sundry Faultes and Corrections, 8 leaves. A wood-cut Map, entitled “Angliæ Heptarchia;” the exposition of this Map, and History of the County, pp. 435.

This Edition contains “The Names of suche of the Nobilitie and Gentrye as the Heralds recorded in their Visitation, 1574,” which was omitted in the subsequent editions.

A Perambulation of Kent: conteining the Description, Hystorie, and Customes of that Shyre, written in the yeere 1570, by William Lambarde, of Lincolne's Inn, Gent. first published in the yeere 1576, and now increased and altered after the Author's owne last Copie, 4to.

Imprinted at London by Edm. Bollifant, 1596.

Collation — Title; Dedication to the Right Woorshipfull and Vertuous M. Thomas Wotton, Esquier, by W. Lambard, dated from Seintcleres, this last of Ianuarie, 1570; Second Dedication, by T. W. (same as in the first Edition); Saxon Characters, at the back of which a wood-cut “Map of Angliæ Heptarchia,” 5 leaves; the Exposition of this Map, and History of the County, pp. 588; Table of Matters, pp. 5.

This Edition contains (not in the first) “The Distribution of the Shyre for the execution of Justice,” 5 pages; also an “Account of the Beacons in Kent;” with a folding wood-cut Map, entitled “A Carde of the Beacons in Kent.”

Lambarde. Third Edition, corrected and enlarged, 8vo. London: Printed by R. Hodgkinsonne, n. d.

Collation — Title; two Dedications; Description of the English Heptarchie and Saxon Characters, 8 leaves; The Description and History of the Shire of Kent, pp. 656; Laths divided into Hundreds, 8 leaves; Table of Matters, pp. 5.

The wood-cut Map of the Heptarchy was omitted in this and subsequent Editions, as was also the "Carde of the Beacons," although there is a catch-word for it at p. 68.

— Fourth Edition, 8vo. London, 1640.

— [Fifth Edition,] corrected and enlarged, to which is added, the Charters, Laws, and Privileges of the Cinque Ports, never before printed, 8vo.

London: Printed for Matthew Walbancke and Dan. Pakeman, 1656.

Collation — Title; two Dedications; Description of the English Heptarchy, and Saxon Characters, 8 leaves; the Description and History of the Shire of Kent, pp. 656; Table of Matters, pp. 5; Laths divided into hundreds, 8 leaves; Charter of the Cinque Ports; pp. 70. Lowndes, in the Bibliographer's Manual, states that the Charters of the Cinque Ports was printed in the Fourth Edition; but we have not been able to meet with a copy to give a collation of it. It is very probable that this edition of 1656 has only a new title-page.

— [Sixth Edition,] 8vo.
Chatham, 1826.

Collation — Title; Preface; Brief Sketch of the Life of Lambarde; Two Dedications, Saxon Characters, and Exposition of the Map of the English Heptarchy, 9 leaves; The Description and History of the Shire of Kent, pp. 538. Plates — Portrait of Lambarde, engraved by Cooper, from a Portrait by Vertue, a copper-plate map of "Angliæ Heptarchia," p. xii. The Carde of the Beacons is omitted.

This Edition is a literal reprint, both in diction and orthography, of the one of 1596. For a local-printed book, it is well got up.

William Lambarde, the eldest son of John Lambarde, Alderman of London, was born Oct. 18. 1536. Nothing is recorded of the early part of his education until he entered upon the study of the Law, and was admitted into Lincoln's Inn, Aug. 15. 1556. Here he studied under Laurence Nowell (brother to the celebrated Dean of St. Paul's) a man famous for his knowledge of Antiquities and the Saxon Tongue: such was Lambarde's progress, that Camden declared him second only to his instructor. The first fruits of his studies was Archaionomia, sive de priscis Anglorum legibus libri, 1568, 4to., republished afterwards with Bede's Ecclesiastical History, by Wheloc, 1644, who commends highly the elegance of Lambarde's interpretation. In 1570, he appears to have resided at Westcombe, near Greenwich, the manor of which he possessed, and devoted a great share of his labours to the service of the County of Kent. His Perambulation is said to have been completed in 1570; which, after being inspected by Archbp. Parker, and Lord Treasurer Burleigh, was published in 1576: it is worthy of remark, that it was the first history of any county: it was not only highly approved of by Camden, and other literary men of the age, but has given hints to learned men of succeeding times to endeavour the like for their respective counties. From a letter to his nephew, Thomas Wotton, Esq., it appears that his design and researches extended much farther, and that he had already collected materials for a general account of Great Britain, of which this was but the specimen, and that he was prevented from proceeding in his plan by discovering that Camden was engaged in one similar; his materials, however, were published from the original MS. in 1730, under the title of Dictionarium Angliae Topographicum et Historicum, to which is prefixed a portrait of the Author, engraved by Vertue. The biographers of Lambarde have had the pleasure of recording that he was the first protestant after the Reformation who founded an hospital, which was established at Greenwich. The Queen (Elizabeth) granted her letters patent for the foundation of it, in 1574; it was opened in 1576, and was called the "College of the Poor of Queen Elizabeth." In 1579 he was appointed a Justice of the Peace for this county, in 1592 made a Master in Chancery, 1597 Keeper of the Rolls; at length, in 1600, he was personally noticed by the Queen, who appointed him Keeper of the Records in the Tower, and in 1601 he presented to her Majesty an account of them under the title of Pandecta Rotulorum. He died at his house at Westcombe, August 19. 1601, and was buried in the parish church of Greenwich, where a monument was erected to his memory, which, upon rebuilding the church, was removed to the church of Sevenoaks, in this county, where is now the seat and burial place of the family. He was twice married, but left issue only by his second wife. Besides the above Works, he also wrote Eirenarcha; or, the Office of the Justices of Peace, Duties of Constables: Archeion, a Discourse upon the High Courts of Justice, published by his grandson, Thomas Lambarde, all of which passed through several editions. — Bp. Randolph, Hasted, Chalmers.

A Brief Survey of the County of Kent, viz. the names of the Parishes in the same; in what Bailywick, Hundred, Lath, Division of the County, and Division of the Justices, every of the said Parishes is; what Liberties do claim in the same; the day on which any Market or Fair is kept therein; the antient Names of the Parish Churches; in what Hundred or what Township every of the said Parishes doth stand; and in what Diocese every of the said Parishes was, (by Richard Kilburne) London, 1657.

An oblong quarto in various columns, which is exceedingly rare.

A Topographie; or Survey of the County of Kent: with some Chronological, Historical, and other Matters touching the same, and the several Parishes and Places therein, by Richard Kilburne, of Hawkherst, Esq. 4to.

London, 1659.

Collation — Title; to the Nobility and Gentry, and Contents, 4 leaves; "Topographie," pp. 422; Index and Errata, 6 leaves.

Prefixed is a portrait of the Author, Ætatis suæ 52, 24 Sept. 1657, T. Crose, Sculp.

Of Richard Kilburne little is known, but that he was born in the year 1604, and received an education suited to the profession of the bar, in which he rose to some eminence, having been five times Principal of Staple's Inn, and of as worthy a character, both as a magistrate as an historian. He died on November 15, 1678, aged 74, and was buried in the north chancel of Hawkherst Church, where a flat stone is inscribed, "Hic jacet Ricardus Kilburne, arm. quinquies principalis hospitii Stapulensis London, Patriæ ornamentum, emolumentum, Ob. 15 Nov. 1678, Æt. 74." — Hasted, Malcolm.

Villare Cantianum; or, Kent Surveyed and Illustrated, being an exact Description of all the Parishes, Burroughs, Villages, and other respective Manners, included in the County of Kent; and the original and intermedial Possessors of them, even until these times, drawn out of Charters, Escheat Rolls, Fines, and other Publick Evidences, but especially out of Gentlemen's Private Deeds and Muntiments, by Thomas Philipott, Esq., formerly of Clare Hall, in Cambridge. To which is added, An Historical Catalogue of the High Sheriffs of Kent, collected by John Philipott, Esq. Father to the Authour, folio.

London, 1659.

Collation — Title, "To the Nobility and Gentry of Kent," Preface, Table of Addenda, Lines by John Bois, of Hode, Esq., and Second Addenda, 8 leaves; "Villare Cantianum," pp. 401: Plates — a large folding Map "By the Travayle of Phil. Symonson of Rochester, Gent.," Engrauen by Charles Whitwell, with two Views at the upper corners, Rye, St. Anthony, Van Dyck delineavit, and Dover

Castle and Towne, W. Hollar, fecit, Roman Banner, on p. 8; Arms of Yarmouth, on p. 10; Kits Coty House, on p. 49; and the Arms of the Families of James and Haestrecht, on p. 374, misprinted for p. 372. Some copies are dated 1664.

Philipott. The Second Edition, corrected, folio.
Lynn, Printed and Sold by W. Whittingham, 1776.

Collation — Title, List of Subscribers, “To the Nobility and Gentry of Kent,” Lines by John Bois of Hode, and Preface, 5 leaves; “Villare Cantianum,” pp. 400; Index, 6 leaves; Map of the County (frequently wanting); Roman Banner and Kits Coty House, both on one plate; Bromley College, Thomas Badeslade delin, John Harris, sculpt., the same as in Harris’s History, p. 83. Arms of Yarmouth, on p. 10. The omissions and corrections of the first edition were inserted in their proper places in this reprint, with the addition of an Index.

John Philpott, or Philipott, was a native of Folkestone, in Kent, and descended from an ancient and respectable family in this county. From his infancy he had a taste for heraldry and antiquities. He was much respected by Camden and other heralds; he was successively created Rouge-Dragon, Blanch-Lion, and Somerset-Herald. He made a visitation of his native county in the years 1619, 1620, and in 1621, as marshal and deputy to Camden, then Clarencieux King-at-arms; soon after he began to make his collections for a history of the county, which he seems to have continued till about 1640. When the civil war broke out, he honourably and undauntedly followed whithersoever his duty led. In 1643, the university of Oxford conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws. In the following year, unhappily, he fell into the hands of his enemies, being surprised by the Parliamentarians, whilst in his quarters at a village near Oxford, by some forces from the garrison at Abingdon, who sent him up to London a prisoner; but he soon obtained his liberty. It was the King’s intention to have rewarded his loyalty by the place of Norroy; but he died prematurely in great obscurity in London, according to Ant. à Wood, or near Eltham as Hasted says, Nov. 25, 1645. He was buried in the church of St. Bennet Paul’s Wharf, in London. He published A Catalogue of the Chancellors of England, &c. 4to. 1636; also an edition of his patron, Camden’s Remains 1637. The Cities’ great Concern or Question of Honour and Arms,

Thomas Philpot or Philipott, his eldest son, was educated at Clare Hall, Cambridge, who published the "Villare Cantianum," a book, though written in an affected style, yet is a very valuable performance, as an early history of property, and continues to be highly and justly prized. Though the son takes the credit, there can be little doubt but that much of it was written by the father.

The former says, his father wrote only the list of Sheriffs. Thomas was undoubtedly a man of good abilities, a tolerable poet, and well versed in divinity and antiquities. He published a whimsical work, entitled, A Brief Historical Discourse of the Original and Growth of Heraldry, 8vo. 1672. There are some verses of his prefixed to Southouse's Monasticon Favershamensis, also an appendix of the descent of King Stephen prefixed to the same work. His Poems, 8vo. 1646, is a volume of rare occurrence. Lysons gives an extract from the parish register of Greenwich which has been supposed to relate to him, viz. "Mr. Thomas Philipott, buried September 30, 1682;" adding, that besides the above, he wrote on the origin and growth of the Spanish Monarchy, a Life of Æsop, and various other works. Ant. à Wood attributes to him some theological works; but Lysons thinks it is more probable that they were the production of his contemporary, Thomas Philipott, D.D., rector of Turveston and Akeley, Bucks. — Noble, Chalmers.

Sir Charles Whitworth had some thought of republishing Philipott's Survey, but the progress that he made was so small as hardly to be called an attempt, and his other avocations, together with his soon after quitting this county occasioned it to be laid aside. — Gough.

In Gough's collections in the Bodleian, there are no less than five copies of Philipott, with manuscript notes by Roger Gale, Le Neve, Dugdale, Ames, and Gough himself.

The History of Kent, in Five Parts, containing: — I. An exact Topography or Description of the County. II. The Civil History of Kent. III. The Ecclesiastical History of Kent. IV. The History of the Royal Navy of England. V. The Natural History of Kent, by John Harris, D.D. & F.R.S., Vol. I, folio London, 1719.

Collation — Title, Dedication, Preface, an Ode by P. Motteux, list of Subscribers, &c. 8 leaves. "History of Kent," pp. 592; Index, Additions, and Emendations, pp. 40; Plates — Portrait of Harris; Map of the County, surrounded with the Arms of the Subscribers, p. 1; View of Preston Hall, p. 32; Broome, p. 34; Chilson Manor, p. 48; Wierton, p. 49; Boughton Court, p. 49; Chart

Dr. John Harris was born about 1667, and received his education at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he took his degree of B.A. in 1687, and that of Master in 1691. Having taken orders in the Church, he obtained considerable preferments. He was first instituted into the Rectory of Barming, in this County, which he resigned for St. Mildred, Bread Street, London; he had also the perpetual curacy of Stroud, and a prebend in Rochester Cathedral: he wrote a variety of Sermons and Treatises on the Mathematics; a compilation of Voyages and Travels, in two volumes folio; but the work for which he was most eminently distinguished, was his "Lexicon Technicum;" or, an Universal Dictionary of Arts and Sciences, the first book of its kind published in this country, and from which originated all the other Dictionaries of Science and Cyclopædias which have appeared. Though Harris was a man of unquestionable abilities and attainments, he was charged with culpable imprudence in his conduct; and, notwithstanding the preferments he enjoyed, was generally in distress. He died, Sept. 7. 1719, an absolute pauper at Norton Court, and was buried in Norton Church at the expense of John Godfrey, Esq. who had long been his friend and benefactor.

His History of Kent was published shortly after his death, which, though he had been engaged on it eight years, contains but few alterations from the former descriptions of this county, and as few continuations of families, the owners of the several manors and estates, concluding with the possessors of them in Philpott's time, 1656. What progress the Doctor made towards the second volume, which was to have contained the history of Rochester Cathedral, an account of the eminent persons of the county, the religious foundations, and a history of the Royal Navy, is not known. Dying insolvent, his papers came into the hands of Edward Goddard, Esq. of Clyffe Pypard, co. Wilts, who had them in 1761. Hasted made every inquiry after them when he was writing his history of the County, but gained no knowledge of them. — Gough, Rees, Hasted.

Edward Hasted was the only son of Edward Hasted, of Hawley, in this County, Esq., barrister at law, descended paternally from the noble family of Clifford, as he was maternally from the ancient and knightly family of the Dingleys, of Woolverton, in the Isle of Wight. His laborious History of Kent took him up more than forty years, during the whole series of which he spared neither pains nor expense to bring it to maturity; and the reputation which it still maintains in the judgment of the public is the best proof of its merits. Notwithstanding his attention to this favourite object during the whole of the above time, he acted as a magistrate and a deputy-lieutenant for the county, with uncommon zeal and activity. He was F.R.S. and S.A. In the latter part of his life, he felt the pressure of adverse fortune, which obliged him to quit his residence in Kent, after which he lived in obscure retirement, and for some time in the environs of London, noticed by a few valuable friends, from whom he received constant tokens of benevolent friendship, as having known him in more fortunate circumstances; several of whom are of the rank of nobility, and of high estimation in life. A few years ago, his honourable and highly respected patron and friend, the Earl of Radnor, presented him to the mastership of the Hospital at Corsham, in Wiltshire (a most desirable asylum), to which he then removed; and having obtained, a few years ago, the Chancellor's decree for the recovery of his estates in Kent, of which he had been defrauded; it enabled him again to enjoy the sweets of independent competence during the remainder of his life. He died at the Master's Lodge of the Lady Hungerford's Hospital, in Corsham, Wilts, at the advanced age of 80, Jan. 14, 1812. By Anne, his wife, who died in 1803, Mr. Hasted left four sons and two daughters. — Gent.'s Mag. 1812, communicated by Hasted himself.

A New and Complete History of the County of Kent, embellished with a Series of Views from Original Drawings, by G. Shepherd, H. Gastineau, &c., with Historical, Topographical, Critical, and Biographical Delineations, by W. H. Ireland, 4 vols. 8vo. London, 1828-1830.

Collation — Vol. i. Engraved Title, Dedication, pp. 2; History, pp. 712; Index, pp. 19, with a Map and 30 Plates. Vol. ii. Title, History, pp. 713; Index, pp. 15, and 27 Plates. Vol. iii. Title, History, pp. 698; Index, pp. 18, and 29 Plates. Vol. iv. Title, History, pp. 780; Index, pp. 13; Errata, pp. 8, and 38 Plates. Some copies were printed on large paper.

William Henry Ireland, or as he was generally called "Shakspeare" Ireland, was the son of Samuel Ireland, well known by his Picturesque Tours of the Thames, Medway, and other works. He was born in London about the year 1777, and educated at a school near Soho Square, after which he was articled to a conveyancer in New Inn, where, having some leisure, he began to exercise his ingenuity in the imitation of ancient writing. His success in these attempts set him upon the bold design of forging some papers, and passing them off as the genuine remains of Shakspeare. Having executed some of these on the blanks of old books, he communicated the treasure to his father, who was an enthusiastic admirer of the great bard; he, without secretly examining into the authenticity of the manuscripts, and the truth of the tale which his son related concerning the manner of his obtaining them made a great parade of the discovery to the world. For some time the public were greatly amused by these literary relics, and a few lent themselves to the support of the imposition, so far as to encourage by subscription their publication in a handsome folio volume, to the disgrace of literature. A Play was put forward, as Shakspeare's, entitled "Vortigern," and performed at Drury Lane; but this last dissolved the spell, and the discernment of an English audience quickly detected the cheat. Shortly after, he published his Confessions, affirming that he was the sole author and writer. From that time, losing the support of his friends, he commenced author, and for nearly the whole of his life subsisted by his pen. He published numerous Novels, Romances, Poems, &c.; he died in poor circumstances April 17, 1835, in Sussex Place, St. George's Fields. His History of Kent is a miserable performance, with <e> pretensions of being a County History; it is chiefly taken from Hasted and others; the owners of estates are brought no later down than the time of Hasted; he does not appear to have set his foot in the County, but at some of its fashionable watering-places.

COLLECTIONS FOR THE COUNTY.

Dr. Plot, the Natural Historian of Oxfordshire and Staffordshire, whose ancestors had a seat at Borden, in Kent, also where he was born and buried, made collections for a History of this County; but, beginning at the farther part of his Life, and being involved in other business, he can be said but barely to have projected the outlines of it: all that Harris could get from his collections was a Catalogue of MSS. relating to Kent, and a discourse on the Roman Ways in the County, which he visited 1690. The former, enlarged from Harris's own inquiries, was to have been printed at the end of his second volume. Bishop Gibson in his preface to his first edition of Camden, says, that Plot surveyed Kent and Middlesex for him. Part of Plot's collections came afterwards into the hands of the late Mr. Thorpe of Bexley. — Gough, Hasted.

The Rev. Brian Fausset of Heppington, near Canterbury, was long engaged and indefatigable in researches after the Roman antiquities of the County, and has left a most learned and ingenious account of them, and the places where they were found, with his arguments and proofs drawn from thence, and his own observations of the Roman transactions here; but both his collections of antiquities as well as his papers relating to them, and his transcript of the monumental inscriptions throughout the diocese, are locked up by his will, so as to be of no use to any one. — Gough.

Mr. W. Blackley, of Canterbury, the publisher of the new edition of Gostling's Canterbury, issued about 1825, a Quarto Prospectus of a New Edition of Hasted's History, which design was dropped before any part appeared.

The Reverend Thomas Sreatfield, of Charts Edge, Westerham, has lately issued a splendid Prospectus of a new History of this County preparing for publication, which he proposes to be contained in ten parts in folio, at Two Guineas each; it is to be arranged on a different plan to any other County History, by dividing it into three portions: — 1. The General History; 2. The Topographical and Descriptive; and 3. The Biographical and Genealogical – a portion of each to be published in every part, at intervals of four or six months. The General History, and the order of its publication, must necessarily be chronological; the alphabetical order will be used both to Parishes and Families for more easy reference.

In speaking of the Topographical portion, he says, “It is my design to compress it into a narrow compass, by severing from it all that biographical detail which is unessential to the descent of estates, or to the appreciation of objects of local interest, with the exception.

perhaps, of those rare instances, in which families have not remained sufficiently stable to justify, appropriating to them a distinct head in the Genealogical portion of the work.” The Family History he promises shall contain “not only more ample but more correct pedigrees than Hasted.” Of the Natural History he says, “He does not intend to incorporate beyond such remarks as a few of my correspondents familiar with the subject shall, in conformity with the hopes they have led me to entertain, have the kindness to contribute.” Of the General History he says, “If I propose to devote a greater proportion than is customarily admitted to occupy in topographical works, it is because I feel justified in taking a far different view of many of the events to those hitherto given. There are events on which an acquaintance with the alliances of the actors or sufferers, which falls peculiarly in the way of the provincial historian, diffuses light and importance, which were previously dark and uninteresting; many in which the prejudices of the chronicler have poisoned the current of history, but with so little artifice as to furnish at the same time the antidote. With the General History, also, it is my purpose to incorporate that which Hasted has distributed through his volumes, to insert ecclesiastical dignitaries, civil and military officers, in their chronological order, to break up his tables of the Barons and Burgesses of Parliament, and bring together the names of contemporaries, so that a glance may recall those who, from their station, may reasonably be assumed to have in any degree influenced the affairs of the county at any period of time.”

In reviewing the labours of his predecessors on this County, speaking of Hasted he says, “Least of all I pronounce that the life and fortune which he devoted to it, were wasted in the pursuit. His book is a monument of labour, if in any respect misdirected skill, by no means to be spoken of with other than respect and thankfulness; and if I prefer to remodel rather than to re-edit the History of Kent, to construct a new fabric rather than patch and piece what has descended to me, it is by no means in scorn of his work, to which, it is beyond a doubt I must be compelled to resort to fill-in many a chasm, where original documents shall be wanting. The error of Hasted (and it is, in truth, my warning to pursue an opposite course) was too implicit a dependence upon works previously published. Fastidious correctness is the essence of History, whether general or provincial; and the moment a writer jumps to a conclusion, he shakes the confidence with which we ought to refer to his pages. I am far from charging this contempt of evidence upon Hasted, but unfortunately the imputation lies upon those who furnished the substructure of his history; a foundation which, if I may not utterly dispense with it, I am, nevertheless, convinced of the necessity of examining well before I incorporate with my own work. It is a mortifying conviction. Twenty years ago, I fancied myself familiar with the antiquities of our county, enriched the interfoliations of Hasted with the works of the graver and pencil, continued the descents of the families, and, as opportunities offered, from private documents confided, or public repositories laid open to me, corrected the statements, superseded the original matter, that the idea of publication, which I had gradually cherished, appeared more and more remote. That I am now pledged to it is not, I lament to say, because the old foundations have been at length thoroughly probed. I adventure upon it reluctantly, inasmuch as I am aware how large a portion of those evidences upon which it should be built remains to be investigated; but my tenure of life justifies not the leisurely prosecution of my work to the remote perfection which I had delighted in imagining; and, if I may not do all I would, I would nevertheless do all I may. I know that I have accumulated much that is exceedingly curious, and I would willingly freight my vessel with it in due season, though I may be constrained to sail, and leave still more behind."

PRINCIPAL MAPS OF THE COUNTY.

A New Description of Kent, divided into the fyue lathes thereof, and subdivided into bailywickes and hundredes; with the parishe churches conteyned within euery of the same hundredes, all which, for better vnderstandinge, are distinguished with uaryetye of coloures; comprehendinge as well the cities, the vsuall market-townes, and the portes, with their members lying in Kent, as also such of the houses of the nobylitie and gentrye as the plott coulde conueniently receaue: wherein moreover the nature of the soyle (whether playne, hillye, or wooddye) is more diligentlye obserued; and the tractes of ryuers, rylles, and creeks, with the trendinge of the sea-shore, be more naturally described than heretofore it hath ben done: by the trauayle of Phil. Symonson, of Rochester, Gent., engraven by Charles Whitwell, in two sheets.

Printed and Sould by P. Stent, —

At the top are two Views, one of Rye, Sir Anthony Van Dyck, delineavit; the other, of Dover Castle and Towne, from ye Landside, W. Hollar, fecit. This is the same Map that was used for Philipott's Survey.

Lambarde says, my good friend, Master Philip Simondson, of Rochester, hath lately publisht some parte of his labor in describing oure Shyre of Kent, whereby not onley the townes and hundreds, with the hilles and houses of men of worthe, are more truely seated, but also the sea-coastes, rivers, creekes, waterings, and rilles, be more exactly shadowed and traced than heretofore in this or any other of our land (that I know) hath beene performed. Besides the which he hath observed sundry other things very serviceable, though not meete to be made commune. — Perambulation, p. 220. 4to.

Harris, in his History, speaks very highly of this Map.

HERALDIC VISITATIONS OF THE COUNTY.

Visitation Books (as they are called) of the Counties of England, contain the Pedigrees and Arms of the Nobility and Gentry signed by the heads of the respective families and attested by an Herald. These documents had their origin under a commission of the great seal granted to the two provincial Kings, Clarenceux and Norroy, authorizing them to visit the several counties within their respective provinces "to peruse and take knowledge, survey and view all manner of arms, cognizance, crests and other like devices, with the notes of the descents, pedigrees and marriages of all the nobility and gentry therein throughout contained, and also to reprove controul and make infamous by proclamation all such as unlawfully and without just authority, usurp or take any name or title of honour or dignity as Esquire or Gentleman, &c. &c."

The earliest commission was in the reign of Henry VIII., they were continued but at no settled periods about every twenty-five years until 1686, the second year of James II.

1518. 10 Hen. VIII. By Thomas Benolte, Clarenceux.
The original in the College of Arms.

Gough's Topographical Collections in the Bodleian, contain twenty-seven Manuscripts on this County, a list of which will be found in the printed Catalogue, drawn up by Bandinel, 4to. Oxford, 1814.

The Library of the Society of Antiquaries contains a very extensive MS. collection relative to the Diocese of Rochester, chiefly consisting of Extracts from Testamentary and Parochial Registers, Transcripts of Deeds, copies of Monumental Inscriptions, and other important Genealogical and Topographical information, bequeathed by Dr. John Thorpe, author of the "Registrum Roffense." A list will be found in the printed Catalogue of the Library of the Society 4to. London, 1816.

The splendid Collection of Sir Thomas Phillipps, Bart. at Midlehill, Broadway, Worcestershire, contains a few Manuscripts on this County.

The Library at Surrenden, the seat of the Deering Family, contains a valuable collection of Manuscripts.

The compiler is aware that this list might be considerably augmented; it is not the object of his present volume to give an account of the Manuscripts, but only of Printed Books: should this meet with the approbation of the public, he may be induced to compile a Catalogue of the MSS. in the public Libraries, and of some few private collections.

ACTS OF PARLIAMENT.

Those Acts to which /† are prefixed, are to be found in the Statutes of the Realm, folio or quarto, but some few of the early ones were for the first time printed in the Statutes of the Realm, published by the Record Commission, XI Volumes, folio, London, 1810-1828.

Those Acts to which P. A. are prefixed, are Private Acts, which if printed by the King’s Printers are admitted as evidence in Courts of Law. The particular parishes and manors are noticed where access could be had to the Acts, as in general the title states the County only.

The British Museum contains nearly a complete collection of the Private Acts, from Queen Anne to the present time.

Those Chapters with a /* are to be found under the head of Public Local and Personal Acts, which were for the first time separately numbered in the contents to the Acts of 38 Geo. III.

BOOKS RELATIVE TO THE COUNTY IN GENERAL.

The Historie of Wyate's Rebellion, with the order and maner of resisting the same, wherunto in the ende is added an earnest conference with the degenerate and sedicious rebelles for the serche of the cause of their daily disorder. Made and compyled by John Proctor.

Mense Decembris, Anno 1554. 12mo.

Imprynted at London, by Robert Caly, within the precincte of the late dissoluued house of the graye freers nowe conuerted to an hospitall, called Christes' Hospitall. The xxii. day of December 1554 cum priuilegio ad imprimendum solum.

Comprising 106 leaves printed in black letter. A copy is in the British Museum.

The book is dedicated "To the most excellent and moste vertuous ladye our moste gracious Soueraigne Marie, by the Grace of God, Quene of England, &c. by her obedient subiecte John Proctor, wisheth all grace, longe peace, quiet raygne, from God the Father, the Sonne, and the Holy Ghost."

In the dedication he expresses his horror at the wickedness of Wyatt and his[accomplices, and says: — These general considerations mouing others to indict and penne stories, moued me also to gather together and to regester for memorie the merueilous practise of Wyat his detestable rebellio~, litle inferior to the most dau~gerous reported in any historie, either for desperate courage in the authour, or for the mo~strous end purposed by his rebellion. Yet I thought nothing lesse at the beginning, than to publishe the same at this time or at this age, minding onely to gather notes therof where the truth mought be best knownen (for the which I have made earnest and diligent inuestigation) and to leaue them to be published by others hereafter to the behof of our posteritie. But hearing the sundry tales thereof farre dissonau~nt in the vtterau~nce, and many of them as far wide fro~ truth, facioned from the speakers to advaunce or deprau~e as they fantasēd the parties: and vudersta~dyng besydes what notable infamie sponce of these rebellio~ to the whole countre of Kent, and to euery me~bre of ye same, where sundrie and many of them to mine owne knowledge shewed themselues most faythfull and worthy subiectes, as by ye storie self shal euidently appeare, which either of hast or of purpose, were omitted in a printed booke late sette furth at Ca~terbury./* I thought these to be special co~siderations wherby I ought of duetie to my countrey, to compyle and digest suche notes as I had gathered co~cerning that rebellion, in some forme and fashion of historie, and to publishe the same in this age and at this present, contrary to my first intent, as well that the very truth of that rebellious enterprise mought be throughly knownen, as that also the sheire where that vile rebellion was practised, might by opening the full truth in some parte be deliu~ered fro~ the infamy, whiche as by report I heare is made so general in other shyres, as though very fewe of Kent were free fro~ Wyates conspiracie."

Proctor was schoolmaster of the free school at Tunbridge, and from his vicinity to the scene of action must have had a greater opportunity of knowing the particulars of the rebellion than many others. The work is exceedingly rare. Copies have sold for the sum of from three to nine pounds. It was reprinted in the second volume of the Antiquarian Repertory, 4 vols. 4to. London, 1807.

An Arithmetical! Warlike Treatise named Stratoticos, compendiously teaching the Science of Nu~bers, &c. by Leonard Digges, Gent. Augmented, digested, and lately finished by Thomas Digges his sonne: whereto he hath also adioyned certain Questions of great Ordinaunce, &c. With a brief Discourse what orders were best for repulsing of foraigne forces, if at any time they should invade us by Sea in Kent or elsewhere, 4to. London, 1579.

Printed again in 1590, the latter part of it was reprinted by itself under the following title:

England's Defence, a Treatise concerning Invasion; or a brief Discourse of what orders were best for Repulsing of Foreign Forces, if at any time they should invade us by Sea in Kent or elsewhere, &c. collected by Thomas Adamson, folio pp. 20. London, 1680.

Thomas Digges was the son of Leonard Digges, of Wooton Court, near Canterbury. He was educated at Oxford, and became eminent for his skill in Mathematics, Architecture, &c. Having by his father instructions spent his younger years even from the cradle, in the liberal sciences. These qualifications afterwards obtained him the situation of Muster Master General of Queen Elizabeth's Forces in the Low Countries, under his patron Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester.

/* The book alluded to probably was a small volume printed in black letter entitled "A Breuiate Cronicle contaynyng all the Kynges fro~ Brute to this daye, and manye notable actes gathered oute of Dyvers Chronycles fro~ Wylyam Conquerour unto the yeare of Christ a M. V. C. LIII. Imprynted at Canterbury, in Sainct Paules paryshe by Johnan Mychel, containing 116 leaves dedicated to Syr Antony Anchor," it is also curious as being the <e> first book printed in that City.

He was the author of many learned works. But law suits, which probably descended upon him with his patrimony of Wootton, which he sold immediately after his father's death, and were productive of pecuniary embarrassments, broke in upon his studies, and embittered his days, of which he says, "Had not the Infernall Furies enuying such his Felicitie & happie Societie with his Mathematical Muses for many yeares so tormented him with Lawe-Brables, that he hath bene enforced to discontinue those his delectable studies." He died Aug. 24, 1595, and was buried in the chancel of the church of St. Mary Aldermanbury London, where a monument was erected to his memory, with a long inscription, giving a particular account of his family.

by a man of great eminence and worth, but reuised, inlarged and corrected with the consent and by conference with the first Author, 4to. pp. 27. London, 1625.

This appears to be the first edition of Markham's Treatise, it is dedicated to "The Honourable Knight Sir George Riuers of Chafford in the County of Kent, and signed R. I." which was in the succeeding editions altered to Gervase Markham; it was reprinted in 1631, 1636, 1649, 1664, 1668, 1675, and very frequently in the same writers, "Way to Wealth," and "Farewell to Hus-bandry." He appears, says Harte, to be the first English writer who deserves to be called a hackney writer; all subjects seem to have been alike easy to him; yet as his thefts were innumerable, he has now and then stolen some very good things, and in great measure preserved their memory from perishing. The following is extracted from Baker's Biographia Dramatica "Mem. that I, Gervase Markham, of London, Gent., do promise hereafter never to write any more book or books to be printed of the diseases or cures of any cattle, as horse, oxe, cowe, sheepe, swine and goates, &c. In witness whereof I have hereunto sett my hand the 24th day of Julie, 1617. Gervis Markham."

The author of this little work was Thomas Johnson, Apothecary in London, and Demonstrator of Botany to the Company of Apothecaries. During the Civil Wars, he sided with the King, became a Lieutenant-Colonel, and died in 1644, of a wound he received in a sally from Basing House. In the work he gives a concise Account of an Herborising Excursion made with five other members of the Apothecaries' Company, from London, by water, to Margate, and from thence, by land, to Sandwich, Canterbury, Faversham and Rochester, to Gravesend, where they took boat to London, bringing back with them upwards of 400 Specimens of Plants, the names of which, and their places of growth, he enumerates. The book is extremely scarce, five or six copies only known to be extant. One Copy is in the British Museum, a Second in the Library of the Linnean Society, which formerly belonged to Sir Joseph Banks, (since removed to the British Museum) a Third in the Library of the Physic Garden at Oxford, a Fourth (formerly the Earl of Bute's Copy) in the possession of Dr. Simmons, Physician to the King. A Fifth was lately sold in the collection of William Forsyth, Esq.

Remarks on "M. Carter's Relation." Gent.'s Mag. April, 1799.

The author, Matthew Carter, acted as Quarter-master General in this expedition, and he records several particulars not noticed by Lord Clarendon, and our general historians. It is dedicated, from some place of imprisonment, "To the truly noble and my worthily honoured friend Sir C. K., whose address to the reader follows. At the end are three copies of verses." I. "To my ingenious Friend upon his exact Journall of the Kentish Forces, signed G. W." II. "To the ingenious Author of these commentaryes, signed Roderigoe." III. "To my honoured friend upon his commentary, signed E. P." The Author concludes his own relation with the following prophetic paragraph:

"For my own part, I will not despair while there is mercy in heaven, and a just title upon earth, but Charles the Second may fulfill that prophecie that is so authentickally averred concerning his person, when all these horrid distractions and clouds shal vanish into a calm, and there shall be no more a Babel City

Carolus a Carolo
Major erit Carolo Magno."

Carter is supposed to be the author of the following work: Honor Redivivus, or Analysis of Honor and Armory, 8vo. London, 1655, 1660, 1673, one of the examples of arms, p. 264. ed. 1673, points out the author's Kentish connection and acquaintance; for it contains a shield of the nine following coats, known at that time by their connection either by Blood or Marriage with the Auchers of Bourne, near Canterbury. 1. Sir Thomas Peyton, of Knowlton, Bart. 2. Sir Anthony Aucher of Bourne. 3. Sir James Thynne of Longleat, Wilts. 4. Anthony Hammond of St. Albans in East Kent, Esq., (ancestor of James Hammond the elegaic Poet.) 5. Thomas Stanley of Cumberlow, in Hertfordshire, the Poet, whose mother was a Hammond. 6. Edward Hales of Tunstall. 7. Roger James of Ryegate, in Surrey, Esq. 8. Killigrew of Cornwall. 9. Stephen Penckhurst of Buxted, in Surrey, Esq.

Thomas Harlackenden, son of Walter Harlackenden of Hol-lingbourne, in Kent, Esq., descended from an ancient and genteel family of his name, living now, or lately at Harlackenden, in the Parish of Woodchurch in the same county, became a Commoner of University College, Oxford, with his Kinsman, Tho. Culpeper, in the beginning of the year 1640, aged 15 years, continued there as long as he did, travelled beyond the seas and returned with him.
After his Majesty's restoration, he became a recruiter of that parliament which began at Westminster the 8th May 1661, to serve for the borough of Maidstone in Kent, where running with the court party to obtain his Majesty's designs, hath allowed him a pension, which, as a libellous author at that time said, was his only lively-hood: what other things he hath written more than above, I know not, nor anything else of him, only that he dying in sixteen hundred eighty and nine, was buried in the church of Woodchurch before mentioned, among the graves of his ancestors. Ant. à Wood Athenæ

Thirty-six different Views of Noblemen and Gentlemen's Seats in the County of Kent, all designed upon the spot, by the late T. Badeslade, Esq., Surveyor, and engraved by the best hands, folio. London, H. Chapelle, n. d.

These are the same views that were used for Harris's History of the County.

History of the County of Kent (by the Rev. Thos. Cox, Vicar of Bromfield, Essex.)

Pp. 1071—1270, with a map in vol. 2 of Magna Britannia et Hibernia Antiqua et Nova, 6 vol. 4to. London, 1720-31.

A General History of this County was published in an early newspaper (which is in possession of the publisher), entitled "The Original London Post, or Heathcote's Intelligence," a small folio of two leaves, the first number which commences with Kent, is dated Monday, Jan. 20, 1724, and continued twice a week till Monday Nov. 2, 1724, when it closed the History of Kent; it was so printed that the purchaser could separate the history from the news, which occupied a page, and sometimes even less, the other portion being filled up with Novels, History of Pirates, Civil Wars and other “delectable” reading; it is a fact, though perhaps not generally known, that Robinson Crusoe was originally printed in this journal.

John Hedges, A.M., Vicar of Tudely, cum Capella, Kent, 4to. pp. 11. London, 1763.

Miserable nonsense, the writer of which must be out of his senses. – Gough.

By this direful calamity, incredible damage was done to the Corn, Hops, Orchards, Fields, Woods, Houses, &c. in the Parishes of Brenchley, Tudely, Capell, Hadlow, Mereworth, East and West Peckham, East and West Farley, Yalding, Hunton, Teston, Barming, Wateringbury, Nettlestead, Maidstone, Debtling, Boxley Otham, &c.

An Elegy on a Storm which happened in West Kent, on the 13th of August, 1763, pp. 14. London, 1764.

The Author was W. Prefect, a Surgeon and Apothecary at Town Malling, who advertised and professed to cure insanity; the first poet perhaps, says Gough, that ever pretended to such an art. He also published, The Laurel Wreath, a Collection of Poems, by W. P., 2 vol. 12mo. 1766; it contains two local poems, entitled, “Barham Place,” the seat of Sir Philip Boteler, Bart. at Teston, and “Yokes,” the seat of Bichard Masters, Esq.

An Account of what seemed most remarkable in the five days Peregrination of the five following Persons, viz., Messieurs Tothall, Scott, Hogarth, Thornhill, and Forrest, begun on Saturday, May 27, 1732, and finished on the 31st of the same Month. Imitated in Hudibrastics, by one well acquainted with some of the Travellers, and of the places here celebrated, with liberty of some additions.

"Abi tu et fac similiter," Inscription on Dulwich College Porch, 8vo. London, Printed by J. Nichols, 1781.

An Account of what seemed most remarkable in the five days Peregrination of the five following Persons, viz., Messieurs Tothall, Scott, Hogarth, Thornhill, and Forrest, begun on Saturday, May 27, 1732, and finished on the 31st of the same Month. "Abi tu et fac similiter," Inscription on Dulwich College Porch, 4to.

London, Printed for R. Livesay, 1782.

An oblong 4to. with nine etchings, and as many pages of Letter-press.

This is an account of a five days' trip into Kent (chiefly the Isle of Sheppey and banks of the Medway,) by the above five persons: Tothall, a woollen-draper, at the corner of Tavistock Court, Covent Garden; Scott, a landscape painter, Hogarth, the painter and engraver, John Thornhill (son of Sir James the painter,) and Forrest, another of Hogarth's friends. The party set out at midnight, at a moment's warning, from the Bedford Arms Tavern, with each a shirt in his pocket; they had particular departments to attend to. Hogarth and Scott made the drawings, Thornhill the map, Tothall wms treasurer, and Forrest wrote the journal: on the second night after their return, the book (MS) was produced, bound, gilt, and lettered, and read to the members of the club then present. A copy having been left in the hands of the Rev. Mr. Gostling, "author of the Walk in and about Canterbury," he wrote the imitation of it in Hudibrastic verse, of which only twenty copies were printed by Nichols as a literary curiosity, which, on account of its rarity he afterwards reprinted in his Anecdotes of Hogarth, 8vo. 1782, p. 403-427; also by Hone in his Table-Book, vol. 2, p. 289, with two cuts. Nichols re-published Livesay's Account, with the original plates, in vol. 3, of his Edition of Hogarth's Works, 3 vol. 4to. London, 1808.

Sheriffs of Kent, and List of Subscribers, 7 leaves — Pedigrees and Indexes, pp. 512. The compiler in the preface states that the work contains the whole of the pedigrees entered at the visitation made in 1619 by Philipott; and, where additions could be made to them from the manuscripts in the British Museum, or other Collections of equally good authority, the pedigrees have been augmented and continued down from the information of the existing families themselves; they also contain the Genealogies of the Peers and Baronets, originally of Kentish families, prior to their creations: the volume contains about 410 pedigrees with the arms of the families.
Prefixed to the work is a list of the Sheriffs of the County, from the Conquest to the year 1830.

BIDDENDEN.

A short but concise Account of Elizabeth and Mary Chulkhurst: [a broadside.]

Biddenden, printed and sold by R. Weston, 1808.

Reprinted, with some Additions, by Chambers and Exalt, Tenterden, n. d.

The names given to two maiden sisters, commonly called the Biddenden Maids (who were according to a tradition of the parish), born joined together by the hips and shoulders, in the year 1100; and, having lived in that state for thirty-four years, died within six hours of each other. This tale is affected to be established by the correspondent figures of two females impressed on cakes, which are distributed to all comers every Easter Sunday. Hasted says, that "the print of the women on the cakes has taken place only within these fifty years; and that the truth seems to be that the land, bequeathed for providing the cakes, was the gift of two maidens, named Preston." It is, therefore, extremely probable that the story of the conjoined "Biddenden Maids" has arisen solely from the rude impression on the cakes, and the above hand-bill or broadside. In Ducarel's Repertory of Endowments, 8vo. 1782, will be found an engraving of one of the cakes.

BROMLEY.

A Relation of the late wicked Contrivance of Stephen Blackhead and Robert Young, against the Lives of several Persons, by forging an Association under their Hands, written by the Bishop of Rochester. In two Parts. The first Part being a Relation of what passed at the three Examinations of the said Bishop by a Committee of Lords of the Privy Council. The second being an Account of the two above-mentioned Authors of the Forgery, 4to. pp. 75. London, in the Savoy, 1692.

The Second Part of the Relation of the late wicked Contrivance against the Lives of several Persons, by forging an Association under their Hands; being a further Account of the said Forgery, and of the two Authors of it, Stephen Blackhead and Robert Young, alias Youngs, alias Brown, &c. &c., written by the Bishop of Rochester.
4to. pp. 171. Ibid. 1692.

An account of a diabolical plot against Sprat, Bishop of Rochester, during his residence at Bromley, concocted by Robert Young and Stephen Blackhead, both men convicted of infamous crimes, and both, when the scheme was laid, prisoners in Newgate. These men drew up an Association, in which they, whose names were subscribed, declared their resolution to restore King James; to seize the Princess of Orange, dead or alive, and to be ready with thirty thousand men to meet King James when he should land. To this they put the name of Sancroft, Sprat, Marlborough, Salisbury, and others. The copy of Dr. Sprat's name was obtained by fictitious request, to which an answer "in his own hand" was desired. His hand was copied so well that he confessed it might have deceived himself. Blackhead, who had carried the letter, being sent again with a plausible message, was very curious to see the house, and particularly importunate to be let into the study; where as is supposed, he designed to leave the Association. This, however, was denied him, and he dropt it in a flower-pot in the parlour. Young now laid an information before the Privy-Council; and on May 7, 1692, the Bishop was arrested, and kept at a messenger's, under a strict guard, eleven days. His house was searched, and directions were given that the flower-pots should be inspected. The messengers, however, missed the room in which the paper was left. Blackhead went therefore a third time, and finding his paper where he had left it, brought it away. The Bishop, having been enlarged, was on June 10th and 13th examined again before the Privy Council, and confronted with his accusers. Young persisted, with the most obdurate impudence, against the strongest evidence; but the resolution of Blackhead by degrees gave way. There remained at last no doubt of the Bishop's innocence, who, with great prudence and diligence, traced the progress, and detected the characters of the two informers, and published the above account of his own examination and deliverance; which made such an impression upon him, that he commemorated it through life by a yearly day of thanksgiving.

Desultoria; or. Comments of a South Britain on Books and Men, by Sir Egerton Brydges, Bart., K. J., 12mo. pp. 54. Lee Priory, 1815.

Ataviæ Regiæ: consisting of Sixty Copies only, compiled for private use, by Sir Egerton Brydges, Bart. 4to. Florence, April, 1820.

Collation — Title, Preface, and Explanation of the Plan of the Tables, four leaves "Autographica," pp. xv., Ataviæ Regiæ; pp 118.; Index a leaf; Estratto di Galleria Istorica dei Contemporanei, two leaves. A plate of the Arms of Brydges, with 25 quarterings, faces the title.

This work consists of a series of genealogical tables of the families connected with the compiler; it commences with the first Norman Kings and through the Plantagenets. The male line of the female ancestor with whom each of the Plantagenets successively married is deduced; such as Scotland, Aquitaine, Angouleme, Provence, Castille and Leon, France, Hainault and Flanders. The marriages of these houses, and of those with whom they married, are then deduced in the same manner as long as the compiler's materials remained unexhausted. Prefixed is an autographical memoir of the compiler.

Stemmata Illustria preecipue regia auctore Sa. Egerton de Bruges, Barto. et Baro. Anglo. folio. Paris, 1825, only 100 Copies printed for private distribution.

Plates — 1. A large lithographic Shield of the Arms of Sir Egerton Brydges, containing 360 quarterings; 2. Arms of the Lords Chandos; 3. Arms of Anthony Brydges impaling Fortescue;

4. Arms of succeeding generations; 5. Arms of John Egerton, Earl of Bridgewater; 6. Arms of Ferdinando Stanley, Earl of Derby; 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. Five Shields of Louis Comte de Flanders, Rethel, etc.

A similar work to the preceding, but on a more extended scale, particularly the Carlovingian descent through the Royal Houses of Spain, Portugal, Piedmont (Savoy), the Imperial Houses of Germany, and the younger branches of the Royal Houses of Plantagenet and Normandy, Kings of England, with much biographical memoranda; also miscellaneous notes regarding the Brydges' alliances. The Chandos claim, Gibbon Family of Westcliffe, the Cavendishes, Egerton Family, Barrett of Lee Priory, Robinson of Rokeby, Sonnets and other Poetry relative to family subjects, with a long autographical memoir, different to that in the "Ataviæ Regiæ."

The prospect of ye reliques of the Abbey of St. Austin, Canterbury, from the high tover of Christ Church in the same City, p. 161.

William Somner was born at Canterbury, March 30, 1606, according to the account given by his wife and son; but, according to the register of the parish of St. Margaret's, much earlier, for it represents him to have been baptized Nov. 5, 1598. It was a proper birth-place for an antiquary, being one of the most ancient cities in England; and Somner was so well pleased with it, that, like Claudian's good old citizen of Verona, within the walls, or in the sight of them, he grew up, lived, and died. He was of a reputable family, and his father was registrar of the Court of Canterbury under Sir N. Brent. At a proper age he was sent to the free-school of that city, and had for his master John Twine, who wrote "De Rebus Albionicis," and made collections for a history of this city, from whom it is supposed that Somner first imbibed his first inclination to antiquities. After leaving schoo, he was placed as clerk to his father in the ecclesiastical courts of that diocese, where his abilities attracted the notice of Archbishop Laud, who bestowed on him a situation in the same courts better suited to his merit. He began early to collect materials for his History of Canterbury, which was not published till 1640; it was exceedingly well received by the learned. He had also formed the design of writing a history of the whole county; but the misfortunes which befell his patron, Laud, and the impetuous storm of civil discord and fanaticism which broke out soon afterwards, obliged him to quit his design, and to turn his thoughts to the preservation of his own domestic concerns, and the safety of himself and family. All that is left of this design was the "Treatise of the Roman Forts" which was published after his death by Brome, and some MS. collections relating to some few churches and towns in Kent, now preserved in the Cathedral library. The language and literature of our Anglo-Saxon ancestors engaged much of his attention; and, being greatly encouraged in the study by his friend Dr. Meric Causabon, he completed a Saxon Glossary to Twysden's "Historise Anglicanæ Scriptores," which was succeeded in 1659 by his grand work, "Dictionarum Saxonico-Latinum Anglicum," in the publication of which he was assisted by the liberality of the University of Cambridge, from which he received the salary attached to the Anglo-Saxon professorship, founded by Sir Henry Spelman. Just before the restoration, he was imprisoned in the castle of Deal for endeavouring to procure hands to petition for a free parliament. On the restoration, Somner was one of the royalist sufferers who were fortunate enough to obtain some compensation for the sacrifices they had made at the shrine of loyalty. In 1660 he was made master of St. John's Hospital and auditor of Christ Church, which offices he held till his death, March 30, 1669, after having been twice married; and was buried in the north aisle of St. Margaret's Church, Canterbury, where a monument is erected to his memory. Besides the above works, he wrote a "Treatise on Gavel-Kind, 1660." "The Insecurity of Princes considered in an occasional meditation upon the late King's Sufferings and Death, an Elegy, 4to. 1648." Soon after he published another affectionate poem, to which is prefixed the pourtraicture of Charles I. with this title, "The Frontispiece of the King's Book opened, with a Poem annexed," and "Julii Cæsaris Portus Iccius Illustratus." Bishop Kennet tells us that "he was courteous, without design; wise, without a trick; faithful, without a reward; humble and compassionate, moderate and equal, never fretted by his afflictions, nor elated by the favours of heaven and good men." Kennet, Gough, Hasted, Chalmers.

A Declaration from the Isle of Wyght, concerning the King, and the Trial of Captain Burley upon high Treason, about the late Mutiny in the said Isle, also the Mayor and Alderman's Letter of the City of Rochester, to Sir Thomas Fairfax's Officers, to keep their Forces from coming thither, and the Answer thereunto, together with the Burning of the Gates of Canterbury, &c. dated Jan. 23, 1647-8 4to. pp. 8. London, 1648.

A Proper Memorial for the 29th of May, etc.; being an Account of King Charles the Second's Reception at Canterbury, at his Restoration, on Saturday, 26th of May, 1660. n. d.

The letter-press has many additions, and an extra chapter (XLVII.) has been added, containing such notices of alterations and improvements which could not conveniently be introduced into the body of the work.

The Rev. William Gostling was the son of the Rev. John Gostling, sub-dean of St. Paul's, and born in the year 1695; he was sent to St. John's College, Cambridge, where he took the degrees of B.A. 1715, and M.A. 1719. He obtained the rectory of Brooke, in Kent, 1722 (resigned 1733), a Minor Canon of the Cathedral of Canterbury, Vicar of Littlebourne 1733, which in 1753 he exchanged for the vicarage of Stone, in the Isle of Oxney. He had been for a long time employed in collecting materials for the publication which he modestly called "A Walk through Canterbury," to which Dr. Beauvoir contributed an account of the Painted Windows. Mr. Gostling died at Canterbury, March 9, 1777, in the 82nd year of his age, and was buried in the cloisters of the Cathedral. In the introduction to the fourth edition of the Walk, is the following just delineation of the author: — “This book is indeed a true characteristic of the very excellent disposition of its author, who at all periods of his life, during his residence within the precincts of the Cathedral, found the greatest satisfaction in rendering this city and its environs worthy the attention of travellers; and however incapable some of them might be of deriving pleasure from these venerable antiquities, yet from his cheerfulness and hospitality he insured to himself universal respect and esteem. When no longer able to do the friendly office of attending upon strangers in their walks round the City, being many years before his death confined to his chamber, he gave to the printers this little, though copious tour, undertaken by him from no other motive, but that of information to the curious and inquisitive traveller.” It is a very curious fact, that the author was not able to leave his room, through age and infirmities, during the whole time that he was employed on the work, nor indeed for full fifteen years preceding and subsequent to that period. His MSS. however were corrected by his friends. — Nichols’s Literary Anecdotes.

Printed at London, 1657.

A copy of this rare and probably unique Tract is in the collection of J. G. Chaplin, Esq.

This busy man (Richard Culmer), I find, says Ant. a Wood, was born in the Isle of Thanet, in Kent, educated in grammar learning in the City of Canterbury, and in academical, in Magd. College in Cambridge. Afterwards he became minister of Goodnes-ton, in his own county; was suspended ah officio and beneficio for refusing to read the book of sports on the Lord's Day. For which usage, being much provoked, he became a bitter enemy to Archbp. Laud, to the cathedral at Canterbury, and to all the prelatical party in the beginning of the Rebellion, raised and carried on by the disaffected party. About that time he became minister of Harble-downe, in Kent, and, if I mistake not, vicar of St. Stephen's, near to Canterbury, in the place of Mr. John Gouge, ejected thence for refusing the covenant. And, lest he should not be esteemed as zealous a brother for the cause as any then in being, he published a most vile pamphlet, entitled "Cathedral News, &c.," in which, heaping up all that he could rake together against the cathedral of Canterbury, archbishop, deans, canons, and other officers belong-ing thereunto, had immediately two answers from Oxon, entitled,

“Razing of the Record,” and “Antidotum Culmerianum.” In which last is set down many actions of Culmer’s Life, his demeanour, while he was in the University of Cambridge, and in the country; his refractoriness, impudence, unnaturalness, &c. and what not, that the author thereof, who was a most generous loyalist, and who knew him, could put together to display him to the world. There also goes under the said R. Culmer’s name, the “Minister’s Hue and Cry; or, a true Discovery of the insufferable Injuries, Robberies, &c. acted against Ministers, &c. Lond. 1661.” Also, “Lawless Tythe Robbers discovered, who make Tithe-revenue a mock Maintenance, 4to. Lond. 1655;” besides other things which I have not yet seen. After the King’s restoration, he continued so zealous in his opposition, as to engage (for it was notoriously suspected) in that hellish plot, for which Thomas Venner, Rog. Hodgkin, &c., anabaptists and fifth monarchy men, suffered in Coleman Street, in London, 9 Jan. 1660. But the spirit of the man being as well known as his face, he was taken posting up from Canterbury to London, riding upon Chatham Hill. Whereupon, being committed for a time, he, among several examinations, was asked why he brake down those famous windows of Christ Church in Canterbury? to which he answer’d, he did it by order of parliament; and being asked why in one window (which represented the devil tempting our Saviour) he brake down Christ and left the devil standing? he answer’d, he had an order to take down Christ, but had no order to take down the devil;*

/* A Latin copy of verses on this havoc, by Charles Fotherby, nephew to the dean of that name, address to Mr. Somner, are printed in Dugdale’s Monasticon 1665, vol. i. p. 19, at the back of the ichnography of the Church. Gostling relates the following anecdote of Culmer, while he was demolishing whereby was understood what those plotting bretheren did mean, when they intended to set up King Jesus, to pull down Christ. This Richard Culmer, who was commonly called in Kent “Blue Dick of Thanet,” because he wore blue in opposition to black, which he hated, lived several years after, and dying (but when I know not), was buried in the parish of Monkton, in the said Isle of Thanet. Archbishop Laud says that Mr. Richard Culmer was an ignorant person, and with his ignorance one of the most daring schismatics in all that county (Kent).

Sir Roger Twysden, the second baronet of the family of Roydon Hall, in East Peckham, Kent, was born in 1597. His father, William Twysden, Esq., was one of those who conducted King James to London, when he first came from Scotland, by whom he was first knighted, and afterwards created a baronet. Sir William had a learned education, understood Greek and Hebrew well, and accumulated a valuable collection of books and manuscripts, which he made useful to the public, both in the defence of the Protestant religion, and the ancient constitutions of the Kingdom. Sir Roger, his eldest son, had also a learned education, and was a good antiquary. He assisted Philipot in his survey of Kent, who returns him acknowledgments as a person to whom, “for his learned conduct of these his imperfect labours, through the gloomy and perplexed paths of antiquity, and the many difficulties that assaulted him, he was the windows: A townsman who was among those who were looking at him desired to know what he was doing; “I am doing the work of the Lord, says he. “Then,” replied the other, “if it please the Lord, I will help you;” and threw a stone with so good a will that if the saint had not ducked, he might have laid his own bones among the rubbish he was making; and the place perhaps had been no less distinguished by the fanatics for the martyrdom of St. Richard Culmer, than by the papists for that of St. Thomas Becket, though his relics might not have turned to so good an account.

signally obliged.” His brother Thomas was brought up to the profession of the law, and became one of the justices of the King’s Bench; he was created a baronet, by which he became the founder of the family of Twisdens (for he altered the spelling of the name), of Bradbourn, in Kent. Sir Roger was loyal to his unfortunate sovereign, and detesting the undutiful behaviour of many of his subjects, was not content to set still, but was one of the first to oppose their arbitrary proceedings, which drew on him a severe persecution. He was confined seven years in prison, his estate sequestered, his timber cut down, and paid a fine of £1,300, when he was restored to his estate. When he came again to his seat, he lived retired, and his greatest comfort was conversing with the learned fathers of the primitive church, and the ancient laws and constitution of his country, which he lived to see restored. The appearance of the "Decem Scriptores," with other collections, were owing to his endeavours; he wrote a learned preface to them; and intended a second volume, which was never published. He was also the author of "An Historical Defence of the Church of England." He died June 7, 1672, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. — Collins.

A Letter to a Person of Quality, concerning Fines received by the Church at its Restoration. Wherein, by the instance of one of the richest Cathedrals, a very fair guess may be made at the Receipts and Disbursements of all the rest.
By a Prebend of the Church of Canterbury, 4to. pp. 8.

The author has only subscribed his initials, P. D. M.; from which it maybe inferred it was Dr. Peter du Moulin. The tract is an attempt to defend the receiving of fines for the use of the cathedral churches; in it the Doctor says, as to the emoluments of twenty years in one, if they were reasonable at Canterbury, they could not be very vast in other cathedrals. Our fines are divided equally, but that the dean hath double the share of a prebend, and the total of that great income of our first fines (deducting the reparation of the church, and our present to our royal benefactor), the share of each of the twelve canons was about eleven hundred pounds. Such a sum was no excessive reward for long sufferers, and constant actors in the King's cause, of which the most part of our society consisteth. I am none of the greatest losers of the clergy, yet, I may truly say, that this proportion did hardly amount to the third part of my losses by sequestration and other violences of the war. What had become of ours, and all the cathedral churches, if all the fines had been taken from them before the admission of the canons? That of Canterbury, though much defaced by Culmer and the fanatick soldiers, and decayed by a neglect of well nigh twenty years, was more entire than most cathedrals in England, when we came to it; yet in the year 1664, we found that the reparation of it stood us in twelve thousand pounds, all that expence arising out of fines. But for the fines all the cathedrals in the kingdom, by this time, had been heaps of ruins; without the fines, these great fabrics, the greatest of Europe, cannot yet be preserved from ruin, &c."

130

Pp. 24, with a South Prospect of the Cathedral on the fly leaf.

The Rev. John Duncombe was born in the year 1730. He was educated at Bene't-College, Cambridge, of which he became a fellow. Having taken orders, he was appointed, by the recommendation of Archbishop Herring, to the curacy of Sundridge in Kent; after that he became assistant preacher at St. Anne's, Soho, where his father resided; the Archbishop presented to him the livings of St. Andrew and St. Mary Bredman, in Canterbury. This benefice was bestowed on him in the most friendly manner by his patron, who called it "only something to begin with;" but the Archbishop lived not above two months afterwards. In 1776, Archbishop Seeker appointed him one of the six preachers in Canterbury Cathedral. In 1773, Archbishop Cornwallis gave him the living of Herne. His grace also granted him a chaplainship, and he had previous to the last living, been intrusted with the mastership of Harbledown and St. John's Hospitals, places of trust only, not emolument, so that he had in fact three favours, though not any of them considerable, in succession, from three Archbishops. He wrote a variety of poems, the principal of which, entitled, "The Femineud," is a commemoration of female excellence. Dodsley's Collection as well as those of Pearch and Nichols afford many specimens of his productions which are distinguished rather for taste and elegance than for the higher graces of composition. He also wrote many papers on antiquities, published in the Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica, including an History of Herne and Reculver; he edited the second edition of GostUng's Walk about Canterbury, and Archbishop Herring's Letters; he also translated Battely's Antiquitates Rutupiæ, &c. He died in 1785. His wife, who was the daughter of Highmore the painter, wrote the story of Fidelia, published in the Adventurer. She died at an advanced age, October 28, 1812.

Caveler's Select Specimens of Gothic Architecture.

Plans and Details of the Architecture of parts of the Cathedral of Canterbury, with many Etchings.

Carter's Ancient Architecture, edited by Britton.

A Manuscript Poem, by John Boys, of Hode, written about 1672, exists in the Library of Canterbury Cathedral, to which it was presented by Thomas Park, Esq. in 1802. It is a thin folio, containing upwards of a hundred closely written pages, entitled, "Fasti Cantuarienses," and comprising in English hexameter, a general history of the cathedral, including a detailed account of the introduction of Christianity into Britain by the mission of Augustin. The various parts of the building are described in succession, together with the monuments of the dead, and some notices of the illustrious men who have been interred in the church, or connected with it in their lives.

Numerous documents relating to Canterbury Cathedral are preserved in the Cottonian Library. Amongst the MSS. in the Cathedral Library are eighteen volumes of Old Registers, relating to the Cathedral, consisting of Charters, Records, &c.; a list of which will be found in Tanner's Notitia Monastica, Kent xii.

Justice and Mercie, &c. faces the last page. The plates of the monuments are the same that were used for Dart's History of Canterbury Cathedral, Latin inscriptions being substituted in place of the English; the engraver's name is also obliterated; many heraldic cuts and vignettes are interspersed throughout the volume; the work itself is a fine specimen of typography.

Dr. Dibdin has justly remarked that no name deserves to stand more conspicuous among the lovers of books, than that of Archbishop Parker. He kept printers, engravers, and illuminators in his own palace at Lambeth, and by these means printed only a few copies for private distribution of his very learned and valuable work De Antiquitate Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ.

The Archbishop, in a letter to the Lord Treasurer (Burleigh) accompanying a MS. of Gervasius Tilburiensis, a copy of Lambard's Perambulation of Kent, and a copy of his own book, apologizes, that "he had bound his book costly, and laid in colours the arms of the church of Canterbury, impaled with his own paternal coat," saying, "his lordship might indeed note many vanities in his doings, but he thought it not against his profession to express his own times, and give some testimony of his fellow-brothers, of such of his coat, as were in place of her Majesty's reign, and where himself was thus placed. And though his Lordship might rightly blame an ambitious fancy in him, for setting out their church's arms in colours, yet he told him he might, if he pleased, relinquish the leaf, and cast it into the fire if he so thought it meet. And that he had joined it but loose in the book for that purpose. And as he might, if it so liked him (without great grief to him the archbishop) cast the whole book the same way. This book, he said, he had not given to four men in the whole realm; and peradventure, added he, it shall never come of sight abroad, though some men smelling of the printing of it, were very desirous cravers of the same. He was content to refer it wholly to his judgment to stand or fall. For the present he purposed to keep it by him, while he lived, to add or mend, as occasion should serve him, or utterly to suppress it and burn it. And thus, as he told his lordship, he made him privy to his follies."

Of these rare books, says Strype in his Life of the Archbishop, "the Right Reverend Father in God the Bishop of Ely in his exquisite library has one, which in his great humanity and readiness to forward all good learning, he hath lent to me. There is another in the public library of the University of Cambridge; a third is in the library of St. John's College there; and a fourth in the possession of the Reverend and learned Mr. Thomas Baker, B.D. Fellow of the said college. But the choicest of all was lately possessed by the late most Reverend Archbishop Sancroft, which, was Jocelyn's (his chaplain's) own book (as I have been told), and corrected and enlarged in many places by his own pen. Which after came into the hands of Mr. Wharton, his chaplain; and had he lived, would have been published with his additions, together with the British Antiquities." Strype gives a minute account of the contents, ornaments, and other particulars of one of these copies, which exactly answers to the very curious copy now in the British Museum./* Some of the Archbishop's enemies, most probably the Puritan faction, getting a copy of his book, procured the translation of it into English, and printed it abroad (as it would appear from the type), with malicious notes in the margin, and entitled it, with equal spite, "The Life of the 70 Archbishop of Canterbury, &c." Strype gives instances of the writer's contumelious and uncharitable marginal annotations and reflections. According to Ant-à-Wood it was translated by a thoro-paced separatist, with very vile notes added in the margin, endeavouring thereby to bring an odium on the archbishop, and make him ridiculous for erecting his monument while he lived. The writer gives the account of himself that his lot was low, and that the archbishop knew him not." "If he were a layman," says Strype, "as he gives himself out to be, I am apt to think it might be John Stubbs, of Lincoln's Inn, whose right hand not many years after was chopped off for bold and seditious writing. Who, as he had a bitter scoffing style, so he was a man of some parts and learning; and being allied to Thomas Cartwright (a man exceedingly disaffected to the archbishop and the hierarchy), having married Stubbs' sister, was very probably encouraged and assisted by him."

The malignant commentator speaks of the archbishop's book as "certain rhapsodies and shreds of old foreworn stories almost forgotten till lately awaked and newly sewn together in one book, as though it were some worthy monument and rich hoard wherein had been honourably buried great heaps of the knowledge and acts of the first Christian infancy of the Church of England; and yet having rolled away that glorious grave-stone off that counterfeit-title, and seeking further into it, appeareth a very painted sepulchre, gorgeously decked with that outward only name, and within full of broken shank-bones and reliques of dead carcases; yea, nothing but a very charnell-house of brainless unlearned skulls of such men

/* Dr. Drake, in his edition of the archbishop's book, states that he had a knowledge of twenty-one copies. Martin, in his Bibliographical Account of Books Privately Printed, 8vo. London, 1834, gives collations of sixteen copies, no two of which were found to be alike; he also gives an engraving of the binding of that copy in the British Museum, which is supposed to have formerly belonged to Queen Elizabeth.

as were wicked in their life, and not worthy any memory, being dead; whose rotten bones, yet if they had been closed in lead and well spiced and seared, and handsomely laid up together, peradventure they might have been kept from savoring yet a while: but they are so hurled together, without embalming or other preservation, that the matter being of itself most unclean, is yet, by the manner of handling, if it be possible, made more unclean and filthy.

The title, as it is said, De Antiquitate, &c. Only a few things are said for preface, touching the first preaching of Christ in this our island: but the whole body of the book is bornbasted with the swelling pomps of the Archprelates of Canterbury, wherein, as there is no such clerkly handling as is to be wondered at (for there is much confused shuffling together, as if his method had been Take it among you), so there is no such chaste dealing as were to be wished. For many bastard tales of the adulterous synagogue of Rome are intermingled; so that the greatest care of the workman seemed to be, perhaps, a little for that first part of the treatise, De Antiquitate Ecclesiæ Britannicæ, and much more for the second part, De Friviliis Ecclesiæ Cantuariensis; but most of all for this third part, De Archiepiscopis ejusdem Septuagina et cætera." DARENT.

Observations on the Persons called Waldenses, who were formerly Tenants of the Manor of Darent, by the Rev. Samuel Denne. Archæologia, vol. ix.

The Rev. Samuel Denne was the youngest son of Dr. John Denne, Archdeacon of Rochester; he was born at the Deanery of Westminster, Jan. 13, 1730, and educated at Bennet College, Cambridge. He was presented in 1754, by the Dean and Chapter of Rochester, to the Vicarage of Lamberhurst in Kent, and in 1767 to that of Wilmington, near Dartford; and, the same year, to the vicarage of Darent, having resigned Lamberhurst. Worn out and nearly exhausted from his disorder, a bilious complaint (which at length fixed, after having tormented him forty years), he was for nearly the last two months of his life confined to the chair in the library, which unassisted he could never quit, and in which he was supported by a pillow, frequently sinking under an oppressive languor. On Saturday, Aug. 3, 1799, seated in his chair, without having kept his bed a single day, at the age of 70, he breathed his last. He was buried near his father in the Cathedral of Rochester. An affectionate son he was, and a true lover of the spot appointed for his resting place, and has done much for its illustration. For his character, the poor and needy of his parishes of Wilmington and Darent will afford the best testimonials in one respect; the literary world has sufficient in another. Of the history and antiquities of Rochester, published by T. Fisher, in 1772, he was avowedly the compiler; he also contributed memorials of Rochester Cathedral, and the history of his parish of Darent, and other smaller pieces, to Thorpe's Custumale Roffense; he also communicated some articles to Hasted's History, besides being a constant contributor to the Gentleman's Magazine, the Archæologia, &c. &c. — Nichols.

166

DEAL.

A full Survey of Sion and Babylon; and a clear Vindication of the Parish Churches and Parochial Ministers of England, from the uncharitable Censure, the infamous Title, and the injurious Nickname of Babylonish, or a Scripture Disproof and syllogisticall Conviction of Mr. Charles Nichols, of Kent, his erroneous Assertions, justifying his separated Congregation for the true House of God; and branding all the Parochial Churches, and the parish officiating Ministers in England, with the infamous Title of Babylonish. Delivered in three Sabbath-dayes Sermons, in the Parish Church of Deal, in Kent, after a public Dispute in the same Church, with the said Mr. Charles Nichols, upon the 20th day of October 1653. By Thomas Gage, Preacher of the Word to the Church within the Bounds and Limits of Deal, in Kent, 4to. pp. 104. London, 1654.

170

Thomas Gage was the son of John Gage, of Haling, in Surrey; his brother was Sir Henry Gage, Governor of Oxford, who was killed at the battle of Culham Bridge, Jan. 11, 1644. Of his early history we are told that he studied in Spain and became a Dominican monk.
From thence he departed with a design to go to the Phillipine Islands, as a missionary, in 1625; but on his arrival at Mexico, he heard so bad an account of those islands, and was so much delighted with New Spain, that he abandoned his original design, and contented himself with a less dangerous mission. At length, being tired of this mode of life, and his request to return to England and preach the gospel among his countrymen being refused, he effected his escape, and arrived in London in 1637, after an absence of twenty-four years, in which he had quite lost the use of his native language. On examining into his domestic affairs, he found himself unnoticed in his father's will, forgotten by some of his relations, and with difficulty acknowledged by others. After a little time, not being satisfied with respect to some religious doubts which had entered his mind while abroad, and disgusted with the great power of the papists, he resolved to take another journey to Italy, to "try what better satisfaction he could find for his conscience at Rome in that religion." At Loretto, his conversion from Popery was fixed by proving the fallacy of the miracles attributed to the picture of our Lady there, on which he immediately returned home once more, and preached his recantation sermon at St. Paul's, by order of the Bishop of London. He continued above a year in London, spending his own means, till "at last," says he, "I was fully satisfied, and much troubled to see that the Papists and most of my kindred were entertained at Oxford and in other places of the King's dominions, whereupon I resolved upon a choice for the Parliament's cause, which, now in their lowest state of condition, I am not ashamed to acknowledge. From their hands and by their order, I received a benefice, in which I have continued almost four years, preaching constantly for a thorough reformation intended by them, which I am ready to witness with the best drops of blood in my veins, to whom I desire my history may be a better witness of my sincerity, and that by it I may perform what our Saviour Christ spake to Peter, saying, And thou, being converted, strengthen thy brethren." The living given to him was that of Deal, in Kent; in the register of that church is the following entry, "Mary, the daughter of Mr. Thomas Gage, parson, of Deale, and Mary his wife, buried March 21, 1652." He published an account of his travels in the new world under the following title, "A new Survey of the West Indies, or the English American, his Travail by Sea and Land, containing a Journey of 3,300 miles within the main land of America, &c. &c." folio, 1648 and 1655: other editions were printed in octavo. Gage seems to be a very accurate and faithful relator; but was also extremely credulous and superstitious. He gives some curious accounts of the power of the devil in sorceries and witchcrafts in some of the Indian Villages, which are not unlike what is recorded of the New England mania in the seventeenth century. Southey has quoted much from this work in his notes to the poems of "Madoc." Besides the above works. Gage published his “Recantation Sermon, 4to. London, 1642,” and “A Duel between a Jesuite and a Dominican, begun at Paris, fought at Madrid, and ended at London, 4to. London, 1651.” It is not known when he died; Hasted takes no notice whatever of him. — Matthew Pennington, in Censura Literaria.

A Sermon preached on the Death of the Reverend and Learned James Bate, M.A., late Rector of St. Paul's, Deptford, by the Rev. Colin Milne, 8vo. 1775.

Colin Milne, LL.D., and D.D., F.L.S., was a respectable naturalist and divine. He published, in conjunction with Alex. Gordon, Botanical Excursions in Kent and the neighbouring Counties (vide p. 83); he died at Deptford, in October, 1815, aged 71. The following anecdote of him is related by one Saunders, a noted book-maker in London, who was employed in compiling Family Bibles and Histories of England. When he had put together the Commentary which bears the name of Herries, he went to get Dr. Milne to sanction it by his popularity, as the author. "I went twice to Deptford," says he, "to solicit the Doctor for his name, but he honestly told me, that although he had no doubts concerning my abilities, yet he would not have his name to what he was not to write." This was in 1773, on which Saunders applied to poor Dr. Dodd, who asked one hundred guineas for the allowance of his name, but this was thought too extravagant; and then Herries granted his name for twenty pounds.

Seeking the Lord while he may be found, calling upon him while he is near, considered in a Sermon occasioned by the Death of Anne Olding, who departed this Life December 10th, 1775, in the twenty-fourth Year of her Bloody Newes from Dover, being a true relation of the great and bloody Murder committed by Mary Champion (an Anabaptist), who cut off her Child's Head, being seven weeks old, and held it to her husband to baptize, &c. 4to. 1647.

A Speech made before King Charles II. on the shore where he landed at Dover, 25 May 1660, by Dr. John Reading. To which is added a Latin copy of Verses, with their English by Rich. Bradshaw, folio, single sheet. London, 1660.

John Reading was born in Buckinghamshire, and educated at Oxford, where he took his degrees; shortly after leaving the university he became Chaplain to Edward Lord Zouch, of Haringworth, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, and Governor of Dover Castle: with whom going to Dover, where he preached divers sermons, he was, at the instant request of the parishioners of St. Mary's (who were very much taken with his preaching), made Minister of that Church 2nd Dec. 1616. So that, being settled there, he was very much resorted to for his frequent and edifying sermons, and held in great esteem by the neighbourhood, especially by the puritanical party. Afterwards he was made Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles I. and Bachelor of Divinity. Upon the change of the times, occasioned by the violent presbyterians, he seemed much to discountenance them in his sermons and discourses, and therefore, in April, 1642, his study of books at Dover was plundered by one — Sandys, of Northborne, in Kent, a militia officer, who usually shewed his valour by plundering several of the loyal inhabitants in the County of Kent; and in November following, he was, by command of Sir Edward Boys, a Parliamenteer, taken violently out of his study, and sent to prison and banishment for a year and seven months, and not at all restored to his cure of souls at Dover; which Sir Edward, that he might comply with the schismatics, did prosecute, so long as he lived, our author Reading, to his utter undoing. On the 17th of January following (1642), His Majesty, having had notice of his sufferings, sent his letters to Archbishop Laud, then a prisoner in the Tower, that he bestow the parsonage of Chartham, in Kent, upon him, then void by the death of Dr. Isaac Bargrave, Dean of Canterbury, which being accordingly done as much as lay in the Archbishop's power, Mr. Reading did not receive any profit from it, or from a prebendship of Canterbury about that time bestowed on him, because much opposed by Sir Nath. Brent, Vicar General. In the month of July, 1644, Sir William Brockman did freely bestow upon him the parsonage of Cheriton, in Kent, and about the same time he was appointed by the Assembly of Divines to write Annotations on the New Testament. Not long after, upon the discovery of a plot for the taking of Dover Castle by the cavaliers, he was inhumanly seized on a cold winter's night in his house at Cheriton, by the command of Major Boys (son of Sir Edward before mentioned), and hurried to Dover Castle, and the next day sent to that of Leeds, with many others of the town of Dover. At length, being discharged from his imprisonment by the committee of these parts, they ordered also his goods that he had been plundered of should be restored to him; however, Boys, of Chilham, a sequestrator (different from either of the former), had money of him before he would part with them. On the 10th of March, 1650, he publicly disputed with Sam. Fisher, an Anabaptist, in Folkston Church, in Kent. In the year 1660, May 25 (about which time he was restored to his cure at Dover), he spake a short speech to his Majesty Charles II., at his first landing there to take possession of those kingdoms, from whence he, by a barbarous usurpation, had been ejected:

which being done, he presented to him a large Bible, with gold clasps, in the name of the corporation of Dover. About that time he was restored to his prebendship of Canterbury, and rectory of Chartham, near it, which he kept to his dying day, which took place on the 26th of October, in sixteen hundred sixty and seven, and was buried on the 30th of the said month in the chancel of his Parish Church of Chartham. He published many sermons and other theological works. — Ant. a Wood, Athenæ Oxoniensis.

The Possibility of Apparitions, being an Answer to this Question — “Whether departed Souls can so appear as to be visibly seen and converse here on Earth?” By William Assheton, D.D. 1708.

Occasioned by the circulation of the story contained in the foregoing pamphlet.

Common fame has attributed the story to the celebrated Daniel de Foe, and it is founded upon the following tradition amongst the booksellers. When Drelincourt's book, entitled, "Consolations against the fear of Death," first appeared in the English Language, the publisher was disappointed in the sale, and being a heavy work, he is said to have complained to De Foe of the injury he was likely to sustain by it. Daniel asked him if he had blended anything marvellous with his pious advice, which the bookseller answered in the negative. "If you wish to have your book sell," replies he, "I will put you in the way of it;" and he immediately sat down and composed the story of the apparition, which was made to recommend Drelincourt's book, and has been appended to every subsequent edition. After this there was no complaint for want of a sale, and since then the work has passed through more than forty editions.

The Rev. John Lyon was born in the year 1734; he gave himself early to the study of natural history and physics, particularly electricity, on which he wrote several works: he was a strenuous advocate in favour of the permeability of glass to electricity, and against the direction of the electric fluid to negatively electrified bodies. In 1771, he was nominated to the ministry of St. Mary the Virgin, Dover, which he held forty-five years. During the French Revolution he strenuously endeavoured to stem the influence of revolutionary principles; he printed a circular, which he distributed in his own and neighbouring parishes, which concluded in the following words: "Englishmen, blush; be true to yourselves; support your king and constitution, and you will command the world." On other matters, Lyon was a very mild and peaceable character; he died at Dover, June 30, 1817.

FAVERSHAM.

The Lamentable and true Tragedie of M. Arden, of Feversham, in Kent, who was most wickedlye Murdered by the means of his disloyall and wanton Wife, who, for the Love she bore to one Mosbie, hyred two desperat Rufins, Blackwill. and Shagbag, to kill him; wherein is shewed the great Malice and Discimulation of a wicked Woman, the vnsatiable Desire of filthie Lust, and the shameful End of all Murderers, 4to.

Printed for Edward White, at the little north dore of St. Paul's Church, at the signe of the Gun, 1592.

— [Second Edition], 4to. London, 1599.

— [Third Edition], 4to. Ibid. 1633.

— With a Preface, in which some Reasons are offered in favour of its being the earliest dramatic Work of Shakspeare now remaining, and a genuine Account given of the Murder, from authentic Papers of the Time (by Edward Jacob, Esq.), 8vo. pp. 94.

London, 1592, reprinted 1770.

The plan of this play is formed on a true history, then very recent, of one Arden, a gentleman of Faversham, in the reign of Edward VI., who was murdered as he was playing a game at tables with the said Mosbie, or Morsby. The facts are related in Hollinshed and Baker's Chronicles, Beard's Theatre of God's Judgement, and Jacob's History of this Town. Lillo began a tragedy on the same subject, in which he has frequently copied whole lines, and once several lines together from the above play: Dr. John Hoadly put a finishing hand to it. It was printed in duodecimo, London, 1762.

GAVELKIND, [Custom of].

Custumal of Kent; containing the Usages and Customs which the Communalty of Kent claimeth to have in the Tenements of Gavelkind, and in the Men of Gavel-kind.

202

Said to have been allowed in Eire before John de Berewike and his companions, justices in Eire, in Kent, 21 Edw. I

This ancient tract, which is quoted by Lord Coke, under the title of Statutum de Consuetudinibus Kanciæ, is printed in Tottel's edition of Magna Charta, &c., 8vo. 1556, and in Lambarde's Perambulation, and lastly by Robinson, at the end of his book on this subject, collated with a MS. in Lincoln's Inn Library; to which he has subjoined some reasons, doubting it to be a record of a public nature, but observes that it has received such a sanction from its antiquity, and that it was admitted as evidence in the case of Launder and Brookes, Cro. Car., 562.

A Treatise of Gavelkind, both Name and Thing; shewing the true Etymologie and Derivation of the one, the Nature and Antiquity, and Originall of the other, with sundry emergent Observations, both pleasant and profitable, to be known of Kentish Men, and others, especially such as are studious either of the Ancient Custome or the Common Law of this Kingdome, by (a well wilier to both) William Somner, 4to. pp. 238. London, 1660.

— The Second Edition, corrected from the many Errors of the former Impression. To which is added, the Life of the Author, written, newly revisM, and much enlarged, by the present Lord Bishop of Peterborough (White Kennet), 4to. London, 1726.

Collation. — Title, Preface, Postscript, and Saxon Alphabet, pp. xi. Life of Mr. Somner, the same as in his Treatise of the Roman Ports and Forts in Kent, pp. 136. List of Mr. Somner's Posthumous Manuscripts now in the Library of Christ Church, Canterbury, 2 pages. A Catalogue of the Lords and Gentlemen whose Estates have been disgavelled, 2 pages. The Treatise on Gavel-Kynd, with the Appendix, pp. 216. Table of the Principal Contents, 8 pages. With a plate of Somner's Monument before the title.

Kennett observes that the first edition Came abroad so complete, that it did not admit of one correction (errors of the press excepted), alteration, or addition from his own pen.

The History of Gavelkind, with the Etymology thereof; containing also an Assertion that our English Laws are for the most part those that were used by the Antient Brytains, notwithstanding the several Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes, and Normans, with some Observations and Remarks upon many especial Occurrences of British and English History, by Silas Taylor, Gent. To which is added, a Short History of William the Conqueror, written in Latin by an Anonymous Author, in the Time of Henry I., 4to. pp. 235. London, 1663.

Taylor, in his Preface, informs the reader "that he took occasion to publish his notes of this tenure, from the late printed treatise of that industrious gentleman, Mr. William Somner, of Canterbury, that he has intermingled those first observations with these animadversions on his learned discourses, that he entered not on this undertaking to quarrel with him, or with a design to carp at any thing, which he hath laboriously written," &c. This less accurate writer, says Bp. Kennett, has only attempted to carry the original of the name of the custom from the Saxons to the Britons, and to prove it not proper to Kent, but of an ancient use in other parts of the kingdom. In all material points he confirms the opinion of Mr. Somner, who in other exceptions has made his own defence in marginal notes, or Mr. Silas Taylor's Gavelkind History correcting his mistakes, &c. And his own printed treatise, when, after he was conscious of any omissions or lighter errors, he supplied and amended with his own hand. Both the books so annotated, are now in the Canterbury archives.

Silas Taylor, alias Domville, commonly called Captain Taylor, was born at Much Wenlock, com. Salop, 16th July, 1624; he was sent to the Schools of Westminster and Shrewsbury, and became a Commoner of New Inn. Upon the breaking out of the Civil Wars, he took part with the Rebels, and became a Captain under General Edward Massey; afterwards he was made a Sequestrator of the Royalists in Herefordshire, and had at that time great power there, that he was even liked by the King's party; he held other appointments till the Restoration, which nearly ruined him; but by the favors of some whom he had before obliged, he became a Commissary of War Stores at Dunkirk; five years after that. Keeper of the King's Store Houses at Harwich, where he died, 1678; he made collections for an History of Harwich, which was published after his death by Samuel Dale, 4to. 1730. He was (says Ant. à Wood) a great lover of Antiquities, did, in the times of usurpation, ransack the library belonging to the Church of Hereford of most, or at least, the best MSS. therein, and also garble the MSS. in the Library of the Church of Worcester, among which, as I have heard, he got the original grant of King Edgar, whence the Kings of England derive their right to the sovereignty of the Seas, which is printed in Selden's Mare Clausum. He had got also into his hands a quarto MS. of great antiquity, which treated of the Philosopher's Stone, with some few Latin verses underneath; and being limned with very great curiosity, it was presented to the view of King Charles II., who offered £100. for it, but was refused by the owner." The History of William the Conqueror, appended to the History of Gavelkind, was communicated to him from the MS. in the Bodleian Library, by Dr. Thos. Barlow.

The Commissioners of Real Property have recommended an alteration of the law relating to the customs of Gavel-Kind. A bill was brought into Parliament last session, to carry these suggestions into effect, and the measure will probably be renewed in the present session. The Kent Law Society, considering it desirable that the parties interested in the question should be well acquainted with the advantages and inconveniences arising from the customs relating to Gavel-Kind, have circulated "An Address to the Freeholders of the County, 8vo." in which they very ably and candidly state the bearings of the question on both sides.

London's Wonder; being a most true and positive Relation of the taking and killing of a great Whale near to Greenwich, the said Whale being fifty-eight foot in length, twelve foot high, fourteen foot broad, and two foot between the eyes. At whose Death was used Harping-irons, Spits, Swords, Guns, Bills, Axes, and Hatchets, and all kind of Sharp Instruments to kill her: and at last two Anchors being struck fast into her Body, she could not remove them, but the Blood gushed out of her Body, as the Water does out of a Pump. The Report of which Whale hath caused many hundred of People, both by Land and Water, to go and see her; the said Whale being slain hard by Greenwich upon the third day of Iune this present yere 1658; which is largely exprest in this following

HALES, Sir EDWARD.

The Case of Sir Edward Hales, Baronet, being an exact Account of the Tryal upon an Action of 500 pounds brought against him, with his Plea thereto, upon the King's dispensing with the Stat. 25 Car. II., and the Opinion of the Judges thereupon, fol. pp. 11. 1688.

Account of the Authorities in Law upon which Judgment was given in Sir Edward Hales' Case, by Sir Edward Herbert, 4to. 1689.

The Lord Chief Justice Herbert's Account examined, by W.(illiam) A.(twood), Barrister at Law, wherein it is shewn, that those authorities in law, whereby he would excuse his Judgment in Sir Edward Hales his Case are very unfairly cited, and as ill applied, 4to. pp. 72.

London, 1689.

An Enquiry into the Power of dispensing with Penal Statutes, together with some Animadversions upon a Book writ by Sir Edward Herbert, Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, entituled "A Short Account of the Authorities in Law upon which Judgment was given in Sir Edward Hales' Case, by Robert Atkyns, folio, pp. 58. London, 1689.

Sir Edward Hales was much in favour with King James II., under whom he had a Regiment of Foot; he was one of the Privy Council and a Lord of the Admiralty, Deputy Governor of the Cinque Ports, and Lieutenant Governor of the Tower of London.
He was sued for the penalty of £500. for neglecting to take the oaths of supremacy and allegiance on his acceptance to the command of his regiment; he was convicted at the Rochester assizes for the same, but, moving it into the King's Bench, pleaded the King's dispensing power, and had judgment given for him, eleven of the judges being of opinion that the King might dispense in that case. At the Revolution he was confined for a year and a half in the Tower; on his release he went to France, and in consideration of his services was created Earl of Tenterden by King James II. while he was in that kingdom, which title however was never acknowledged by the English Government. Sir Edward died in France in the year 1695.

HARRIETSHAM.

The Great Eater of Kent; or, Part of the Admirable Teeth and Stomach Exploits of Nicholas Wood, of Harrisom (Harrietsham) in the County of Kent, by John Taylor (the Water Poet), 4to. London, 1630.

A copy sold for £2. 17s. in the Gordonstoun sale; it was reprinted in Taylor's Collected Works, folio, 1630, pp. 142—148; and again in the third volume of the Antiquarian Repertory, 4to. London, 1807.

Nicholas Wood was born at Halingborne in this County, being a landed man and a true labourer. He was afflicted with a disease called Boulimia, or Caninus Appetitus, insomuch that he would devour at one meal what was provided for twenty men; he ate a whole hog at a sitting, and at another time thirty dozen of pigeons. Whilst others make much at his malady, let us raise our gratitude to the goodness of God, especially when he giveth us appetite enough for our meat, and yet meat too much for our appetite; whereas this painful man spent all his estate to provide provant for his belly, and died very poor about the year 1630. — Fuller's Worthies of England.

Sandys, in his Translation of Ovid's Metamorphosis, in the Notes to the eighth book, speaking of the punishment of the hungry Erisichthon, who consumed his patrimony on his belly, says, "Wood, of Hollingborne, in Kent, would have starved him sooner had he been of his family; who being a landed man, and a true labourer, could hardly compasse better food than the livers of Bullocks. He hath devoured, at one meale, as much as was provided for twenty men. I have heard those men say that knew him, how he ate a whole hog at a sitting, and at another time thirty dozen of pigeons.

Tusser's Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry.

A Perfite Platforme of a Hoppe-Garden, and necessarie Instructions for the Making and Mayntenaunce thereof, with Notes and Rules for Reformation of all Abuses commonly practised therein, very necessarie and expedient for all Men to haue, which in any wise haue to doe with Hops, by Reynolde Scot, 4to. London, 1573.

Printed in Black Letter, with many wood-cuts; it was reprinted again in 1576 and 1578 by Henrie Denham.

Raynold, or Reginald, Scot, a younger son of Sir John Scot, of Scot's Hall, near to Smeeth, in Kent, by his wife, daughter of Reynolde Pimp, of Pimp's Court, Knt., was born in that County, and at about 17 years of age was sent to Oxon, particularly as it seems to Hart-hall, where several of his countrymen and name studied in the latter end of King Henry VIII. and in the reign of King Edward VI., &c. Afterwards he retired to his native county, without the honour of a degree, and settled at Smeeth, where he found great encouragement in his studies from his kinsman Sir Tho. Scot. About which time, taking to him a wife, he gave himself up solely to solid reading, to the perusing of obscure authors that had by the generality of scholars been neglected, and, at times of leisure, to husbandry and gardening. Besides the above work on Hops he also wrote a very curious work on Witchcraft, entitled, "The Discovery of Witchcraft, wherein the leud dealing of Witches and Witchmongers is notably detected, the Knavery of Conjurors, the Impiety of Inchanters, the Folly of Soothsayers, with many other things, are Opened, which have long been hidden, howbeit very necessary to be known," 4to. London, 1584; also, in 1651; again, in folio, London, 1655. All the copies of the first edition that could be found were burnt by the order of King James I., who wrote on the other side of the question. Scot gives many curious relations of Witchcraft in Kent. A copious analysis of the work will be found in Oldy's British Librarian and the Retrospective Review. What else our author Scot hath written, I cannot (says Ant. à Wood) yet tell, nor anything else of him, but only that he died in Sept. or Oct. in fifteen hundred ninety and nine, and was buried among his ancestors in the church of Smeeth before mentioned.

The Riches of the Hop-Garden, explained by R. Bradley, F.R.S., 8vo. pp. 104. London, 1729.

In this curious little pamphlet Bradley observes "I am of opinion, with a curious Kentish Gentleman, that if we were to prepare and order the hop binds as we do hemp, they would make excellent cordage," p. 92.

Instructions for Planting and Managing Hops, and for raising Hop-Poles, 8vo. Dublin, 1733.

Poems on several Occasions, by Christopher Smart, A.M., 4to. pp. 246. London, 1752.

Containing "the Hop-garden," a Descriptive and Local Poem, illustrated with a plate, representing a hop-garden frolic, designed by Hayman, engraved by Griginion. It was reprinted again in a collected edition of "Smart's Works, 2 vols. 12mo. Reading, 1791."

Christopher Smart was born at Shipbourne in this County in the year 1722; he was educated at Cambridge, where he several times obtained the Seatonian prize for the best Poem on the Being and Attributes of God. His Hop-Garden is an ingenious and much admired publication. He was a man of considerable vivacity and poetical talents; but becoming embarrassed in circumstances, grew disordered in mind. His insanity shewed itself in an ungovernable predilection to prayer, without distinction of time, place, or circumstance. He died in 1770.

Compiled by Beilby Porteus, Bishop of London. In the copy in the Royal Library in the British Museum, is the following note in the hand-writing of the Bishop “It is my earnest desire that this little volume may never be made public nor reprinted. — B. London, Aug. 15, 1808.

“Having spent,” says the Bishop in the Preface, “the happiest period of my life at Hunton, Fulham, and Sundridge, which were (at different times) my three country mansions, I am desirous to leave behind me a little history of each, as a grateful return for the delight they afforded me for so many years; and with a view of giving an half-hour’s amusement to a few intimate friends and relations, who can alone take any interest in these private details, and for whose use alone, therefore, I shall print a few copies of this little volume.

LYMNE.

A miraculous Work, of late done at Court of Streete, in Kent, published to the deuote People of this Tyme, for their Spiritual Consolation, by Edward Thwaytes, Gent. 1527.

An extraordinarily rare volume; we have not been able to trace the existence of a single copy. Lambarde calls it "a little pamphlet, conteining foure and twentie leaves, penned by Edward Thwaytes, or I wot not by what doltish dreamer, printed by Robert Redman."
Herbert inserted the title of it in his edition of Ames's Typographical Antiquities, on the authority of John Lewis of Margate's manuscript collections. Dibdin, in the new edition of the Typographical Antiquities, does not even mention it.

It is an account of the pretended inspiration of Elizabeth Barton, commonly called the Holy Maid of Kent, who, being tutored by the monks, affected to be endowed with the gift of prophecy, and endeavoured to excite a spirit of insurrection against the measures which King Henry VIII. was then pursuing in respect to his divorce, and to the suppression of the religious houses. For the offence, she and her accomplices were attainted of treason in the twenty-fifth year of the same reign, and herself with seven others, among whom were Richard Master, Rector of Aldington, Edward Booking, and Richard /* Dering, Monks of Christ Church, Canterbury, were executed at Tyburn. John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, John Adeson, his Chaplain, Thomas Golde, and Edward Thwaites (probably the writer of the above wmrk). Gentlemen; Thomas Laurence, the Register of Canterbury, and Thomas Abel, Priest, were attainted of misprision of treason, and their goods and chattels forfeited during pleasure.

/* Lambarde says John.

MAIDSTONE.

A godly and fruitfull Sermon, made at Maydstone, in the County of Kent, the first Sunday in Lent, 1552, in the Presence of the most Reuerend Father in God, Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, &c., by M. Thomas Cole, Scholemaster there, 8vo.

London, Imprinted by Reynold Wolfe, 1553.

A verie wonderful and strange Miracle of God, shewed upon a Dutchman, of the age of 23 years, which was possessed of ten Diuels, and was by God's mightie Prouidence dispossessed of them againe, the 27 of Ianuarie last past, 1572. London, Anno 1572.

"Unto this the Maior of Maidstone, with diuerse of his brethren, subscribed chieflie by the persuasion of Nicasius Vander Schuere, the minister of the Dutch church there, John Stikelbow, whome (as it is there said) God made the instrument to cast out diuels, and foure other credible persons of the Dutch church. The Historie is so strange, and so cunninglie performed, that had not his knauerie afterwards brought him into suspicione, he should haue gone awaie unsuspected of this fraud." — Reginald Scot's Discoverie of Witchcraft, Book vii.

The Life and Death of Mr. Tao. Wilson, Minister of Maidstone, in the County of Kent, M.A. by G.(eorge) S.(winnock), 12mo. pp. 109. Printed in the year 1672.

An Account of the Life and Death of the Rev. Thomas Wilson, M.A. formerly of Maidstone, by the Rev. George Swinnock, A. M. (Edited by W. Grosere), 12mo. pp. 116.

Printed in the year 1672, reprinted 1831, Maidstone,

This Life of Wilson, by Swinnock, which, notwithstanding it has passed through two editions, is very little known, is elegantly written, and with vigour of style. The subject of the Memoir was incumbent of Maidstone during the civil wars, and a most pious and exemplary man, and of great talent. His disputes with the ecclesiastical powers were chiefly connected with the peculiarities of the times in which he lived.

Trial of Mr. Whitefield's Spirit," 8vo. pp. 32. London, 1741.

Remarks on the Account of a Controversy between the Author of the Trial of Mr. Whitefield's Spirit and Benjamin Mills, a Dissenting Minister at Maidstone, in Kent, written by the said Mr. Mills, vindicating the Author of the Trial from his groundless aspersions and reflections, and setting the controversy upon its right foot. By a Curate of the Diocese of Canterbury.
(Rev. William Newton, Minister of Wingham), 8vo. pp. 38.
London, 1741.

An Examination of the Remarks made by a Curate of the Diocese of Canterbury, on the Account of a Controversy between the Author of the Trial of Mr. Whitefield's Spirit and Benjamin Mills, occasioned by a Paragraph in the Trial reflecting on the Dissenters. In which the Remarker's Defence of the Paragraph is shown to be weak and inconsistent; the Account rescued from his false and partial representations; and the Author of it from his uncharitable and unjust reflections. By Benjamin Mills, 8vo. pp. 39. London, 1741.

A Sermon preached to a Congregation of Protestant Dissenters at Maidstone, Nov. 5, 1741, with a Preface giving some Ac-

Collation. — Title, Contents, Preface, Advertisement, and Errata, pp. xx.; History of Maidstone, pp. 168; with a View of Maidstone, surmounted with the arms of the Town, before the Title. Some copies were printed on large paper. The Appendix, promised on the last leaf, never appeared.

Of the Rev. William Newton little is known. His ancestors were goldsmiths in Maidstone, of which place he took up his freedom in 1705. Subsequently, in the year 1717, by the advice of some of his friends, among whom was Dr. White Kennet, afterwards Bishop of Peterborough (whose Life he wrote), he entered into the church, being then above thirty years of age. He wrote several tracts on theological subjects, and had successively some preferments in the church. He died in 1744, incumbent of Wingham and Stodmarsh, in the County of Kent, aged about sixty. He left issue three daughters, and his grand-daughter is stated to be still living in the Weald of Kent, and to have many of his papers.

Account of the Grammar School at Maidstone. Carlisle's Endowed Grammar Schools, vol. i.

A Ramble in Maidstone, with a cut. Hone's Year-Book, p. 365.

— Vide Civil War Tracts, Nos. 33, 34, 35, and 36; also Acts of Parliament, Nos. 98, 140, 149, 162, 175, 190, 213, 234, 259, 291, 301, 329, 332, 397, 400, 431, 439, and 443.

No History of Maidstone has appeared commensurate with the importance of the town. That by Newton, in 1741, is very imperfect; and the short account by Rowles, in 1809, is compiled from Newton, Philipot, and Hasted. Clement. T. Smythe, Esq., Solicitor, of Maidstone, who has numerous collections, has expressed his intentions of publishing an History, but it is feared his professional engagements will not speedily allow them to be put into execution; the Rev. Beale Post, also of Maidstone, has considerable collections for the History of the Town.

<ANTIPROBALE>; or, a Defence of the Minister of Pensherst, in a Case between him and the Earl of Leycester, in Michaelmas Term, 165?, 24mo.

London, printed for T. R. for the Author, 1660.

This little volume, of twenty-seven leaves, occurred in Heber's Library, part v. No. 1662; it was formerly in the collection of J. Bindley, Esq., who had written in it, that it was the only copy he ever saw; it is now in the collection of H. W. Diamond, Esq., F.S.A.

It is an account of some differences between the Earl of Leicester and the Minister of Penshurst (I. Maudit), who appears to have been put into the rectory by the committee of Parliament, which having displeased the Earl, he commenced a series of vexations against the rector, by destroying the glebe and making a warren next to it, &c. &c., which ended in a trial of the minister for defamation, in saying that the earl "was an oppressor and an enemie to the Reformation." The trial took place at the Lent Assises, 1657, when his lordship gained a verdict of £500, which, in the opinion of the judges, was thought oppressive; they sent messages to the earl to stay the proceedings for a time; nevertheless he took out four writs of Fieri facias, and seized the whole of the Minister's property, even to the poultry about the house.

Letters and Memorials of State in the Reigns of Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James, King Charles the First, part of the Reign of King Charles the Second, and Oliver's Usurpation, written and collected by Sir Henrie Sydney, Knight of the Garter, &c., the famous Sir Philip Sydney, his brother Sir Robert Sydney, Robert second Earl of Leicester, and Philip Lord Viscount Lisle, faithfully transcribed from the Originals at Penshurst Place, in Kent; whereunto is added Genealogical and Historical Observations; also, Memoirs of the Lives and Actions of the Sydneys, and their noble Descendants, &c., &c. By Arthur Collins, author of the Peerage of England, 2 vol. folio. London, 1746.

Penshurst, a Poem, inscribed to William Perrys Esq., and the hon. Mrs. Elizabeth Perry (by Francis Coventry), 4to. pp. 22. London, 1750.

Also printed in the fourth volume of Dodsley's Collection of Poems.

Case of Elizabeth Perry, of Penshurst Place, Relict of William Perry, of Turville Park, Esq., respecting her claim to the Barony of Sydney, of Penshurst, heard before the Lords' Committees for Privileges the 17th June, 1782, folio, pp. 7. —

As a Barony originally created by letters patent, in the reign of James I. It was only descendable in the male line, and as such it was resolved against the claimant; but see a full statement of the case in Cruise on Dignities, p. 205-211.

The Trial at Bar, on Monday, Feb. 11, 1782, on a Writ of Right and Proceedings in the Court of Common Pleas, at Westminster, between John Sidney Earl of Leicester, Viscount Lisle, and Baron Sidney, of Penshurst, in Kent, Defendant, and Elizabeth Perry, tenant for Penshurst Place, Park and Premises in the County of Kent, before Lord Chief Justice Loughborough, Justices Gould and Heath, with the Speeches and Arguments of the Counsel and Judges, 4to. pp. 25. London, 1782.

Report of Proceedings on the Claim to the Barony of L'Isle, in the House of Lords, by Nicholas Harris Nicolas, 8vo. pp. 463. London, 1829.

The claimant to this title was Sir John Shelly Sidney, Bart. After a minute investigation before a committee of the House of Lords, they decided "that there did not appear to be sufficient ground to advise his Majesty to allow the claim of the petitioner." Notwithstanding his Majesty has since bestowed the title on the claimant's eldest son, who married one of his daughters.

A very curious print was engraved by Theodoric de Brij in the year 1587, representing the Funeral Procession of Sir Philip Sydney, a minute Account of which is given by Thorpe in the Custumale Roffense, who then possessed a copy; The College of Arms possesses two copies; another is in the Ashmolean museum at Oxford; the copy which formerly belonged to Richard Gough, Esq. was sold in 1810 for £39. 18s. It is in length thirty-eight feet and some inches; in breadth seven inches three quarters, and contains three hundred and forty-four figures. At the beginning, within a compartment with the foliage border, is the following inscription, in the characters or handwriting of that age: —

“The most honorable and thrice renowned knight, Sir Philip Sidney (of whose singular vertue and witt all ages will speak) being sente by hir Mati. into the lowe countries, was made Lo. Governour of Vlissing. He arrived there the 18th of Nov. 1585, wher he was most honorablye receaved. He was Colonell of all the Dutche Regiment in Zealand, and Capitayne of 200 foote and 100 horse Englishe. In Febr. he attempted the surprising of Eteenbergen in Brabant, wherein he had prevailed, but for a suddeyn thawe. In Julye following, 1586, throughe his wisdome and pollicie, a towne in Flaunders called Axell was wone. In Sept. at the releeving of Zutphen, he charged the enemye thrice in one skirmishe, and in the last charge he was wounded with a muskett shott, whereof he died at Arnhame the 17th of Octob.; from whence he was broughte by water to Vlissing, where he was kepte eighte dayes for his convenient passage. On the 1st of November, 1586, he was broughte from his howse in Vlissing to the sea syde by the Englishe garrison, which were 1200, marching by three and three, the shott hanging downe their peeces, the halberts, pykes, and enseignes trayling alonge the grounde, drums and fyfes plaing uery softly. The bodye was covered with a paule of velvet, the burgers of the towne followed mourning; and so soone as he was imbarked, the small shott gave him a triple vollye; then all the greate ordynaunce about the walles were discharged twise, and so tooke theire leave of theire well-be-loved governour. From thence he was transported in a pynnis of his owne, which is here portrayde. All her sayles, tackling, and other furniture were coulored black, and black clothe hanged rounde aboue her, with escouchions of his armes, and was accompanied withe dyvers other shippes. He was landed at Tower-Hill, London, the 5 of the foresaide moneth, and caried to the Minorites, where he was kepte untill the 16 of February following; on which daye he was solempnelye caried thorowe London to St. Paules churche (which is expressed in the next leafe, with the modell of the hearse), and there interred. The churche was hanged about with black clothe, the hearse was covered with velvett, and most bewtifully adorned with escouchions of his armes. The picture which you see here expressed is the true counterfayt of T. L., who was the author and inventor of this worke.

Beneath is a small plan or map of the River Thames, with the towns on the Kent and Essex shores, a View of London, &c.

In the next compartment or leaf, as it is above expressed, is a perspective view above the choir of old St. Paul's, in the centre of which is the hearse to receive the corpse while the ceremony was performing, &c.

Delineatu & inventu~ hoc opus primu~ est a Tho. Lant generoso, fabulo lucius honoratissimi equitis. Insulptum deinde in œre a Derico Theodor Debrij in urbe Londinensi, 1587.

In the next followeth the manner of the whole proceeding of his funerall, which was celebrated in St. Paules the 16 of Febr. 1586, with the self-same state and order as the mourners were marshalled by Robert Cooke, als. Clarencieulz King of Armes, withe the diversite of eache man's app~ell, and action after their severall degrees. And to sollempnize the same, there followed nexte unto the mourners the lord maior, aldermen, and sheriffs of the cittye of London, ryding in purple; after them the Company of Grocers, of which he was free; and lastlye, certayne younge men of the cittye, marching by three and three, in black cassokins, with their shott, pikes, halberds, and ensigne trayling on the grounde, to the nombre of 300, who so soon as he was interred, honored the obsequy with a double volley.

This worke was first drawne and invented by Tho. Lant, Gent., servant to the saide hon. knight, and graven in copper by Derick Theodor de Brij, in the citye of London, 1587.

Remarks on Reculver Church, by an Architect.
Gent.'s Mag. Feb. 1808.

abridged from the Latin of Mr. Archdeacon Battely, 8vo. London, 1774.

Pp. 164, with a map and plate of antiquities.

Dr. John Battely was born at St. Edmundsbury, in Suffolk, in the year 1647, some time Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to Archbishop Sancroft, who collated him to the rectory of Adisham, and in 1687 to the archdeaconry of Canterbury, and in the following year to a prebend in the Cathedral. He died October 10, 1708, and was interred in the south cross of Canterbury Cathedral, where a mural monument is erected to his memory.

The Antiquities Rutupinæ was first published by Dr. Isaac Terry, canon of Christ Church, Oxford, who states in the preface that the Archdeacon had made collections for St. Edmundsbury, and offered them to any of the learned or lovers of antiquity who might undertake an history of that town; this hint having no effect, and the publication of them being solicited, the author's nephew, Mr. Oliver Batteley, published them, together with the Antiquities Rutupinæ, in a very handsome quarto, with a new set of plates. The antiquities which are described in the work, were, by the author's relation, deposited in the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge.

The book is written in a truly Ciceronian style, in a dialogue between the author and his two learned friends and brother chaplains, Dr. Henry Maurice and Mr. Henry Wharton; though elegant, it is somewhat prolix. Dr. Rawlinson says, "that it discovers much skill in the Roman Antiquities and Histories." The translation was made by the Rev. John Duncombe, one of the six preachers in Canterbury Cathedral, who has added a few notes.

Rochester, T. Fisher, 1772.

Collation. – Title, advertisement, subscribers, &c. pp. xiv.; History, pp. 336. Plates. – Plan of the City before title, Rochester Castle, p. 25; W. End of the Cathedral, p. 57; Conventual Seal, p. 74; Ruins of the Chapter House, p. 96; City Seal, p. 257.

Mr. Thomas Fisher was the first who established a Printing-office in Rochester, for many years exhibited a pattern of extreme assiduity in business, and became an Alderman of that corporation. He died Sept. 29, 1786, at which time he was preparing a new edition of the History of Rochester, of which Mr. Shrubsole of Sheerness was the original compiler. Many gentlemen furnished materials for the work, and none contributed to it more largely than the Rev. Samuel Denne, who is the gentleman alluded to in the advertisement prefixed to the work, as "one whose name would do honour to any publication." But though Mr. Fisher was not the actual editor of the book, it is certain that much of its success was due to the zeal with which he solicited communications for it. He was father to the late Mr. Thomas Fisher of the India House, the very excellent antiquarian draftsman, who published "Illustrations of Bedfordshire," plates to illustrate Hasted's History, &c.; he also contributed many antiquarian articles on this county to the pages of the Gentleman's Magazine. — Nichols's Literary Anecdotes.

The History and Antiquities of Rochester and its Environs. Second Edition, with considerable Additions and Improvements, 8vo. Rochester, 1817.

Collation. — Title, advertisement to the first edition, ditto to the second edition, contents, and subscribers, pp. xvii.; "History," pp. 419. Plates. — Plan of the City of Rochester, survey'd and plann'd by R. Sale, folded before the title; Rochester Bridge and Castle, from Strood Quay, p. 35; West end of Rochester Cathedral, p. 49; Ancient Conventual Seal, p. 82; Ruins of the Ancient Chapter House, p. 86.

The editor of this new edition was Mr. W. Wildash, who has made considerable additions, but complains that in a few particular instances communications were not bestowed with that spirit of liberality which might have been expected. It has no index, which is so desirable in works of this kind.

City of Rochester. — A Particular of the several Estates, Lands, and Tenements belonging to Mr. Watts's and St. Catherine's Charities, and also the City Estates, describing the several Lessees, the term of Years granted, and the time the Leases expire, the yearly Rent and Taxes, with Remarks, 4to. An Historical Account of that Venerable Monument of Antiquity, the Textus Roffensis, including Memoirs of the learned Saxonists, Mr. William Elstob and his Sister, by Samuel Pegge, M.A.; to which are added, Biographical Anecdotes of Mr. Johnson, Vicar of Cranbrooke, and Extracts from the Registers of that Parish, 4to. London, 1784.

Collation. — Title, half-title, Historical Account, pp. 47. Forming No. 25 of the Bib. Topog. Brit.

Besides the affairs of the Cathedral of Rochester, the Textus Roffensis furnishes us with the laws of several Saxon kings (four Kentish kings omitted by Lambard), together with the Saxon forms of oaths, &c., extracts were given from it in Wharton's Anglia Sacra. Bishop Nicolson and Dr. Pegge say this is the "Chronicon claustrum Roffensis" of the Monasticon. During the Civil Wars this book was lodged in the hands of Sir Roger <e> Tysden, where Dugdale, in his Origines Juridiciales frequently refers to it. Hearne printed it from a transcript in the hands of Sir Edward Dering, by his great grandfather's father,/* from the original, at that time (1632) in the hands of Dr. Leonard, a physician, and now among the Harleian MSS. in the British Museum./† Dr. Leonard stole it, and kept it two years, till Dean Balcanqual and the Chapter filed a bill in Chancery against him, 1633. At its return to Rochester it fell into the water, but was recovered without much hurt, except being a little tarnished by the salt water. Dr. Gale printed from it in his XV. Scriptores, p. 792, Genealogies of our Kings, reprinted by Bertram in his Hist. Brit. Scriptores tres, and in part by Hearne. In 1712 it was at London, probably for the use of Dr. Harris, then writing his History of Kent. Mr. Elstob and his sister employed one James Smith, a boy of ten years old, to transcribe in folio such parts of it as had not before been printed. This they collated, and it was finished May 23, 1712, being very fairly written in three months time, every page answering to the original; and a very /† Mr. Anstis intending to publish it, borrowed the manuscript of the Textus Roffensis of the late Sir Edward Dering, which was never returned; but, as the transcriber intended it for publication, this is less material. Hearne has omitted parts already published, confining himself to what concerned rem Diplomaticum (pref. p. 7). The judicia civit. Lond. are in Brompton, and were intended for publication by Wilkins. Tanner mistakes in saying Hearne printed the whole, as does Hearne in saying (p. 13) that Sir Edward Dering designed a commentary. And as to the marginal shields, they are the Dering arms: referring to mention of the family, or its concerns, vide pp. 184, 185, 192, and 200.

extraordinary performance it was for such a boy. On the death of Mr. Elstob it came to his uncle. Dr. Charles Elstob, Prebendary of Canterbury, and at his death was purchased, with the rest of Mr. Elstob's Saxon transcripts, by Mr. Ames, at whose sale, 1760, Dr. Pegge bought it. It contains more than the Dering transcript, supplies the chasm in Hearne (p. 234), as also others. A large Saxon instrument, beginning thatha se biscop godwine, is in it; and the catalogue of books much longer than in Hearne (p. 234). The late Archdeacon Denne collated Hearne's edition, with the original at Rochester, and transcribed the marginal additions by Lambard, Dering, &c. and carefully referred to the other MSS. that contains these instruments as the Reg. Temp. Roff. and the Cotton Library, and permitted Dr. Pegge to have these additions transcribed into his copy by the Rev. and careful Mr. Richard Husband, Minor Canon of Rochester.

The Textus Roffensis is a small quarto, new-bound in red, written on vellum in a very elegant hand. The thirteen later Archbishops of Canterbury, and the fifteen later Bishops of Rochester, are added by later hands. Hearne commends Ernulph for making himself master of the Saxon language, though a Norman. Wanley gives an exact catalogue of the contents of the first part, and a general one of the second in Hickes's Thesaurus. Lambarde first published extracts from it in his Archaionomia and Perambulation of Kent. Bp. Parker refers to it in his Antiq. Britan. Ecclesiæ. The transcripts from it in Spelman's Concilia, vol. i. were made by some scribe who did not understand Saxon letters. Dr. Wilkins compared them with the original, and corrected them. John de Laet translated the laws of Ethelbert, Llothere, and Eadric, into Latin, from a transcript sent him by Spelman; and both this version and the original are in Hickes's Epistolatory Dissertation (p. 88), where are also their excerpts from it. Dr Wilkins corrected De Laet's version in his edition of the Saxon Laws. Dr. Harris printed his extracts in the English type; but his notion about the use of Arabic numerals at that time, because at the top of the leaves, is not well founded, the Roman ones being used in the book itself. — Pegge and Gough.

Articles of Enquiry, with a Letter to the Clergy, in order to a Parochial Visitation of the several Churches and Chapels, and of the Houses of all Rectors, Vicars, and Curates in the Archdeaconry of Rochester, to be made by John Denne, D.D., Archdeacon of Rochester, 4to.
pp. 19. 1732.

Dr. John Denne was born at Littlebourne, 25 May, 1693, was brought up at the Free-school of Sandwich and Canterbury, and finished his education at Bennet College, Cambridge; afterwards Vicar of Shoreditch, and Archdeacon of Rochester, and Fellow of the Antiquarian Society; during the time he was at Cambridge, the Rev. Mr. Lewis applied to him for all the pertinent information that could be collected relative to the Isle of Thanet in the MSS. of Archbp. Parker; he also made large collections for an History of Rochester Cathedral, which he evidently intended to publish, but for many years the duties of his station, to the discharge of which he always paid the most assiduous regard, prevented his engaging fully in this work. Between him and Dr. Thorpe, says his son, there was a frequent and unreserved communication of their respective inquiries into the Antiquities of the Church and Diocese of Rochester; and it is to be regretted, that time and other circumstances would not admit of their uniting in a production of the matured fruits of their researches. He died 5th Aug. 1766, and was buried in Rochester Cathedral.

before the title; Ruins of the Ancient Chapter-house at Rochester,

Dr. John Thorpe descended from an ancient family, seated at Chertsey, in Surrey, and Rolvenden, in Kent: he was the eldest son of John Thorpe, of Newhouse, otherwise Harts, in the parish of Penshurst, where he was born, 12 March, 1681-2, and educated at the Grammar School of Westerham; he was afterwards sent to University Coll., Oxford, where he took his degrees; after leaving the university, he settled in Ormond Street, London, near his friend Dr. Mead, and for several years assisted Dr. Sloane, then secretary to the Royal Society, in publishing the Philosophical Transactions. During his continuance in London, he contracted an intimate acquaintance with the most eminent physicians, naturalists, and antiquaries of that time. At the pressing and repeated solicitations of many of his relations and friends, he, in the year

1715, quitted London, and settled at Rochester, for the practice of his profession, that of a physician, where, at his leisure hours, he applied himself to his favourite study, the History and Antiquities of his native county, and more particularly those relating to the ecclesiastical affairs of the diocese of Rochester. In this pursuit he employed several amanuenses to copy and transcribe from the registers, and ancient deeds what related to that see and church, and from other public and private repositories. His labour was also indefatigable in taking the sepulchral inscriptions and coat armour on monuments and painted glass, within several miles of Rochester. Having been chosen into several places of trust, and particularly into that of one of the assistants of Rochester Bridge, of which he was elected one of the wardens for the year 1733, he set himself to search out and make as complete a collection of materials as he possibly could, for illustrating and ascertaining the history and antiquities of that ancient and well constituted incorporated body. He was very communicative, and always ready to assist and contribute any thing in his power toward the studies and labours of others, as hath been acknowledged by many of the most learned antiquaries, who were his contemporaries, particularly Thomas Hearne, the Oxford antiquary, Browne Willis, and the Rev. Mr. Johnson, Vicar of Cranbrook, and Editor of the Ecclesiastical Canons. He practised his profession in the City of Rochester and County of Kent thirty-five years, thinking it as much his duty to relieve, out of charity, the poor and necessitous in their afflictions, as those of affluent circumstances, for a reward. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Woodhouse, of Shobdon, in the County of Hereford, by whom he had one son: at length, being worn out with the fatigues of his profession, and having contracted a cold in one of his journeys, it brought on a severe and fixed rheumatism, that terminated in an atrophy, which he bore with admirable patience and resignation to the Divine will. He departed this life on St. Andrew's day, 1750, within the precincts of the cathedral church of Rochester; and lies interred in a chapel on the north side of the church of Stockbury, in Kent, which belonged to an house and lands in that parish, called Nettlested, which he had some years before purchased, and was for several generations the mansion of the family of Plott, ancestors of that eminent naturalist, Dr. Robert Plott. — Life by <e> Son.

John Thorpe was the only son of Dr. John Thorpe, of Rochester; he was born in the year 1714, and educated at Ludsdown, in Kent, whence he was removed to University College, Oxford, where he took his master's degree in 1738; soon after which period, an event took place that threw a damp upon his spirits in life.

Abraham Spencer, of Red-Leafe, in Penshurst, Esq., was cousin-german to Mr. Thorpe; he had lately been High Sheriff for the county, and in him vested a landed estate of near £1000 a year. Many and frequent were the assurances that all Mr. Spencer's fortune would be Mr. Thorpe's, and he even knew himself entitled to it, should Mr. S. die intestate, his possessions being principally a portion of the lands of his maternal uncle, Oliver Combridge, who held the same affinity to both. But such is the mutability of human affairs that, aided by a village lawyer, Mr. S. executed a will near his death, not in favour of Mr. T. but of a person who had some time before been a very humble dependant on his bounty, his mother and three aunts being the servants who had ruled M. S.'s house and held his purse.

That Mr. Thorpe should not question the legality of this will, was, at the time, a matter of great surprise; it had even the marked indignation of the populace, who had nearly sunk the corpse deep in Lancup-well, in Penshurst Park, ere it reached the chancel of the church; but in the character of Mr. Thorpe moderation and content were the predominant features; he, therefore, let the questionable deed pass by unnoticed, and resolved to pursue his favourite studies in his own way. Inheriting his father's turn for antiquities, he edited from his parent's MSS, the Registrum and Custumale Roffense; he published Illustrations of several antiquities in Kent, printed in the Bib. Topog. Brit.; and was an old and frequent contributor to the Gentleman's Magazine. He married the daughter of Lawrence Holker, M.D., a physician at Milton, near Gravesend; and after her death in 1789, to whom he had been united forty-two years, he married, in 1790, Mrs. Holland, a lady who lived with him as housekeeper, and was the widow of an old college acquaintance. Soon after his first marriage, he purchased High Street House, in Bexley, which, after his first wife's death, he quitted for a house on Richmond Green, Surrey, and at last removed to Chippenham, in Wiltshire, where he died, August 2, 1792, in the seventy-eighth year of his age. He was buried, according to his own desire, in the church-yard of Harden Huish, in the same county. Mr. Thorpe, by the report of one who knew him well, "was happy in a retentive memory, and could quote whole pages of his favorite Pope, with the utmost facility. He was courteous, but not courtly, in his manners; hospitable, but not extravagant, at his table; skilful and curious in his garden; intelligent and communicative in his library; social, elegant, and informing in his general conversation; and on antiquarian topics almost an enthusiast." — Nichols's Literary Anecdotes and Gent.'s Mag.

ROMNEY MARSH.

The Graunts, Ordinances, and Lawes of Romney Marshe, 12mo.

London, imprinted by Thomas Berthelet, 1543.

The Charter of Romney Marsh; or, the Laws and Customs of Romney Marsh, framed and contrived by the Venerable Justice, Henry de Bathe, very useful for all proffessors of the Law, and also for all Lords of Towns, and all other Landholders within Romney Marsh, Bedford Level, and all other Marshes, Fenns, and Sea Borders, 8vo. London, 1686.

Pp. 90, printed in Latin and English, on opposite pages; the latter in Black Letter.

The various editions, besides the above, were 1543, 1579, printed by Joan Wolfe, widow of Reginald Wolfe; 1597, by John Wolfe, 1647, 1690, 1697, 1732; also printed with the "The Laws of the Sewers," in 1726.

"This small Treatise, now put into thy hand, has no less of authority and use than it has of antiquity. It contains the ancient Charter of King Henry III., concerning the ordinance of Romney Marsh, and the Laws and Customs made by the learned Justice, Henry de Bathe, in the two and fortieth year of the reign of the said Henry III., for the reparation of the Sea Banks, and for the preservation of the said Marsh from inundations; and is since become the pattern or law for all other Sea Borders, and great Marshes and Fenns." — Preface to the edition of 1686.

A most advantageous and necessary project for England that ever was yet undertaken, containing: — 1. Proposals for insuring all the Sea Walls or Sea Banks, and Marsh Grounds thereunto belonging, in England, Wales, and North Britain, from loss and damage by overflowing tides and inundations of the Sea. — 2. For gaining all sorts of Marsh Lands from the Sea. — 3. For insuring Keys and Mharfs, and for enlarging of Docks and Harbours. — 4. The draining of Fens after a new Method. — 6. Proposals for forming Mill Ponds for Rape Mills or Corn Mills, on convenient Creeks of the Sea. By a Society at London, 8vo, pp. 109. London, 1725.

The Improvement of the Marsh (Romney) and the Country near about it: being an Account of some Proposals for furnishing the Marsh with fresh Water; with Reasons for the same, Reflections thereon, and Objections answered. To which is subjoined, a further Proposal for mending the Sea Walls about Dimchurch, by John Young, 4to. pp. 24. 1700.

William Boys was born at Deal, Sept. 7, 1735; he was the eldest of two sons of William Boys, Esq., commodore, by commission, in the Royal Navy, and Lieutenant-Governor of Greenwich Hospital. Early in life, he shewed a strong propensity to cultivate Literature and Science, and every moment he could spare from his professional duties (that of a surgeon) was devoted to some useful pursuit. Residing within a mile of Richborough (the ancient Rhutupium), he was soon led to investigate the history of his neighbourhood. He acquired an uncommon facility in deciphering ancient MSS. and inscriptions; and being fortunately in very easy circumstances, he was enabled to gratify his taste, and, at no inconsiderable expense, collected many valuable and curious books, MSS., coins, and other antiquities. In 1786, he circulated among his friends proposals to print Collections for a History of Sandwich, &c., disclaiming all views of profit; he proposed to fix such a price on the work as should merely defray the expense of printing and engraving, and so conscientiously did he adhere to this proposal that, after the distribution of the book, he found himself a considerable loser: this and his "Collection of Minute Shells, discovered on the Sea-shore, near Sandwich," were his principal literary productions; he was, at all times, ready to assist his friends with hints and observations on any subject which had engaged his attention; several antiquaries and naturalists have acknowledged their obligations for assistance contributed by him. Dr. Latham, in his Index Ornithologicus, has given Mr. Boys's name to a new species of Tern, communicated by him. In 1787, he was appointed surgeon to the sick and wounded seamen at Deal; but this appointment was found to require so much of his time and attention that, in 1796, he was induced to relinquish entirely his practice at Sandwich, to reside near the Naval Hospital at Walmer, till 1799, when the commissioners of the Sick and Hurt Office accepted his resignation, which office was conferred on his fourth son, Edward Boys, M.D. At this period, he returned to Sandwich. In February of that year, he had a slight attack of apoplexy, followed by other more stronger attacks in December and March, 1803; he lingered till the 15th of that month, when he placidly breathed his last, and was buried in St. Clement's Church, Sandwich, where an elegant mural monument is erected to his memory. He was, for many years, a very useful magistrate of that town, having been elected Jurat in 1761, and served the office of Mayor in 1767 and 1782. In 1775, the corporation found it expedient to oppose an intended Act for draining the vallies of East Kent, which they considered would destroy the haven and harbour of Sandwich. Mr. Boys drew up a very sensible memorial, without his name, viz. "The Case of the Inhabitants, &c. of the Town and Port of Sandwich," 4to. The attention he paid to this subject rendered him afterwards very useful as one of the Commissioners of Sewers for East Kent, at whose meetings he was a constant attendant as long as his health permitted. — Nichols's Literary Anecdotes.

Some copies were printed on large paper.

John Lewis was born at Bristol, Aug. 29, 1675, and educated at the grammar school of Poole, in Dorsetshire; from thence he proceeded to Exeter College, Oxford, where he took his bachelor's degree in Arts, and was soon after ordained deacon by Bishop Compton; about the close of the century, he took upon him the cure of Acryse, and lived at the same time in the family of Philip Papillon, Esq., to whom his behaviour rendered him so acceptable, that, although he had left the parish, and was then chaplain to Paul Foley, Esq., upon the death of the incumbent he was presented to the living. Sept. 4, 1699. He now applied himself to repair a dilapidated parsonage-house, as well as to discharge his pastoral duties with all diligence; he found a kind friend in Archbp. Tenison, who had heard a good character of him, and granted him the sequestration of the little rectory of Hawkinge, near Dover, 1702. It was at this time that his acquaintance began with Mr. Johnson, of Margate, who recommended him for his successor in that laborious cure; but his old friend and patron Mr. Papillon, being unwilling to part with him, he excused himself to the archbishop at that time; afterwards, upon the resignation of Mr. Warren, he accepted it in 1705; in 1706, he was collated to the rectory of Saltwood, with the chapel of Hythe, and the desolate rectory of Eastbridge; but, being here disturbed by a dispute with a neighbouring squire, his patron removed him to the vicarage of Mynstre, where he re-built the parsonage-house in a more elegant and commodious manner.

A Sermon that he had preached at Canterbury Cathedral on Jan. 30, being severely reflected upon, he printed a defence, which was so highly approved of by Archbp. Wake, that he rewarded him with the mastership of Eastbridge Hospital; from that time he was continually employed on his various publications and correspondence with the literary men of his time. He died Jan. 16, 1746, and, at his own desire, was buried in the chancel of his church at Mynstre. Besides his Histories of the Isle of Thanet and Faversham, he wrote a great number of Sermons, Theological Pamphlets, and Biographies. He also left numerous Manuscripts, which are scattered about in public and private libraries. Among others, he left Memoirs of his Life, written by himself, which was lately in the collection of Mr. Heber, but now in the hands of the Rev. Thomas Streatfield, who, we hope, will give it to the public in his forthcoming History of this County. It was Lewis's misfortune to live in a time of much party violence, and, being a moderate man, he met with ill usage, from both parties, particularly from the clergy of his own diocese. He was so diligent a preacher, that, we are told, he composed more than a thousand sermons. He was always of opinion that a clergyman should compose his own sermons, and therefore ordered his executor to destroy his stock, lest they should contribute to the indolence of others. Having no family (for his wife died young without issue), he expended a great deal of money on his library, and the repairs of his dilapidated parsonage-houses, and was, at the same time, a liberal benefactor to the poor. — Masters, Chalmers, Nichols, &c.

An Account of the Huggett Copy of Lewis's History of Thanet, with a narrative of circumstances which took place between Mr. J. Boys, Solicitor, of Margate, and R. Freeman, of Minster, in Thanet, relating to that copy, by Rowland Freeman, 8vo. pp. 16.

Canterbury, printed for the Author, by Rouse, Kirkby, and Laurence, 1809.

The Rev. Roger Huggett, of Stone, in Thanet, the contemporary and friend of Lewis, was strongly attached to the study of Antiquity, Heraldry, and Topography. His own copy of the History of Tenet, second edition, 4to. 1736, the margins of which were covered with MS. Notes and Illustrations, was left as an heir-loom to his family. This volume had been lost for several years, and was at length discovered to be in the possession of Mr. R. Freeman, who, as appears by advertisement in the Kentish Gazette, Aug. 11, 1809, was about to publish a third and improved edition. By the exertion of Mr. Boys, it was recovered and restored to a descendant of the family.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

The first notice we have of Tunbridge Wells is in a work entitled, "A Forest of Varieties, in three parts, by Dudley Lord North," folio, 1645, a second edition of which was published in 1659, with the altered title of, A Forest Promiscuous of several Seasons' Productions, in four parts. In a marginal note, p. 129, edit. 1659, the author says, "The use of Tunbridge and Epsam Waters, for health and cure, I first made known to London and the king's people; the Spaw is a chargeable and inconvenient journey to sick bodies, besides the mony it carries out of the kingdom, and inconvenience to religion. Much more I could say, but I rather hint than handle – rather open a door to a large prospect than give it.

Mores. This work forms No. 1 of the Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica; it is preceded by "Queries for the better illustrating the Antiquities and Natural History of Great Britain and Ireland," p. i.-xiv.

Corrections to Mores' History of Tunstall.

Gent.'s Mag. Feb. 1781.

Edward Rowe Mores was born at the Rectory House in this parish in January, 1730. He was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, and Queen's College, Oxford. He became very early distinguished for his learning and application, and was indefatigable in making collections, many of which are still in manuscript in different libraries. In the latter part of his life his habitual industry gave way to pursuits of dissipation, which are supposed to have shortened his days. He died at his house at Low Layton, in Essex, in November, 1778. The Equitable Assurance Society owes its existence to this gentleman, the idea of it having been previously suggested by Mr. J. Dodson, Mathematical Master at Christ's Hospital.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

We are informed that the first and only part of the new edition of Hasted's History of Kent (vide p. 14) was published at Canterbury, in 4to. in 1825 or 1826, but we have not been able to meet with a copy.

The Hon. Board of Ordnance have since published (vide p. 19) a new Map of Kent, with part of the surrounding counties, on four sheets; the maps now published under their direction are divided into squares, and not as usual into Counties.

Peace and Gratitude, a Sermon preached before the Honourable Society of the Natives of the County of Kent, November 23, 1697, at St. Mary-le-Bow, London, by Samuel Prat, D.D., 4to. London, 1697.

A Sermon preach'd before the Honorable Society of the Natives of the County of Kent, November 17, 1698, at St. Mary-le-Bow, London, by John Better, D.D. 4to. London, 1698.

Christian Charity, a Sermon preached before the Honourable Society of the Natives of the County of Kent, November 20, 1701, at St. Mary-le-Bow, London, by George Stanhope, D.D., Chaplain, in Ordinary to his Majesty, and Vicar of Lewisham, 4to. pp. 27. London, 1701.

Vide p. 75, for two other Sermons before this Society.

Perry's Views in Kent should contain eighteen engravings, when complete; they were originally engraved and published in Hasted's History; the following (with those noticed at p. 83) will make up the above number, — North View of the Abby of St. Augustine in the City of Canterbury — St. Augustine's Monastery — St. Gregory's Priory, Canterbury — Reculver Church in the Isle of Thanet.

The Railway Magazine, from May 1835 to February 1836, 8vo. pp. 372, with twelve plates. London, 1835-6.

This work gives an account of the Greenwich, Whitstable, and Dover Railways, illustrated with five engravings.

335

Mockett's Journal; a Collection of interesting Matters relating to Remarkable Personages, Ancient Buildings, Manners, Customs, &c., beginning with the year 50, by John Mockett, of St. Peters, in the Isle of Thanet, 8vo. pp. 328. Canterbury, 1836.

Containing many memorandums relative to this County.

A Letter on Earl Grey's Speech on the Presentation of the Kent Petition, 8vo. 1829.

A Brief History of Dover and Ramsgate Harbours, with a Description of the Coast between Dungeness and the Isle of Thanet, by a Naval Officer, 8vo. pp. 48, with a plan of Dover Harbour. Ramsgate, 1837.

Little has yet been done with regard to the dialect of this County. Lewis, in his History of the Isle of Thanet, second edit. gives a few words, which were copied, with some additions, by Grose, in his Provincial Glossary; a small pamphlet was lately published at Canterbury, containing a few localisms, entitled "Jack and Joan's Fair." Sir Frederick Madden, of the British Museum, possessed a manuscript, entitled "Kentisms," written by Dr. Samuel Pegge, who was more than twenty years Rector of Godmersham, in this county. A very curious specimen of the dialect of Kent occurs in MS. in the Arundel Collection in the British Museum (No. 57); it was written as early as 1340, by one of the Monks of St. Augustine's, Canterbury; some specimens of which will be found in the preface to Cædmon's Metrical Paraphrase, edited by Thorpe, royal 8vo. London, 1832.

BILSINGTON.

Tenure of the ancient Manor of Bilsington Priory, the seat of Thomas Carr Ryder, Esq.

Hone's Table-Book, vol. i. p. 166.

BLACKHEATH, vide p. 101.
